REUTHER ELECTED CIO PRESIDENT

Gov. McKeldin Urges 'Get Tough' Foreign Policy For New Regime

South Koreans Oppose India's Peace Proposal

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Dec. 4 (AP) — South Korea turned down today an Indian compromise proposal for ending the Korean War as the president of the U. N. Assembly wrote an appeal to the Communists to accept it.

Y. T. Pyun, foreign minister of the U. N.-sponsored Republic of Korea, announced here that his government could not accept the Indian resolution, approved yesterday by 54 of the 60 U. N. members, because "it is against the spirit of the Constitution of the Republic of Korea."

West Not Worried

Western delegates said privately they would not worry about South Korea's stand if the Communists did the unexpected and agreed to the proposal.

Pyun objected to the heart of the plan, which is a provision for sending thousands of North Korean war prisoners to a demilitarized zone from which they would be repatriated by a U. N. commission. Pyun said his government regarded the prisoners as liberated Koreans. Those who desired to remain in the South should be liberated now, he added. The others are Communists, he said, but they still are Koreans and are not alien prisoners of war. He said it would reflect on Korea's sovereignty to send them to the demilitarized zone, even temporarily.

Lester B. Pearson, president of the Assembly, told the news conference he was writing a letter to go along with the Assembly's resolution. This letter would explain the background of the resolution and would end with an appeal to Peiing and Pyonyang to accept it.

Creates Commission

The resolution called for creating a repatriation commission made up of Czechoslovakia, Poland, Sweden and Switzerland to take charge of the prisoners. It provided specifically that no force should be used to repatriate or detain them. If the prisoners were not disposed of in 120 days, they would be handed over to the U. N. as refugees.

The Assembly's steering committee, meanwhile, approved a plan for speeding up the Assembly in an urgent attempt to finish most of the work by Dec. 20. It agreed unanimously to recommend that the big 60-nation Assembly committees, some of them bogged down in a mass of long-winded speeches, set up a six-day schedule of morning and afternoon meetings through Dec. 20. If necessary these meetings could go on to Dec. 22 or 23, the committee decided.

NEW CIO BOSS—Walter P. Reuther, dynamic 45-year-old chief of the auto workers union, yesterday was elected president of the CIO at Atlantic City. Reuther won a hotly contested battle with Allan S. Haywood for the top post of the 5,000,000-member organization.

Durkin Seeks Meeting With Taft And Labor

NEW YORK, Dec. 4 (AP)—Martin P. Durkin, President-elect Eisenhower's choice as secretary of labor, said today one of his first tasks in office will be to arrange a conference between Sen. Robert A. Taft and labor leaders to discuss Taft-Hartley labor law changes.

Taft only this week termed Eisenhower's selection of Durkin for the labor post as "incredible."

Durkin, an AFL official and a Democrat, supported Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois in the latter's presidential campaign against Eisenhower.

Durkin stated in a news conference in Eisenhower's Hotel Commodore headquarters his hope that the Taft-labor conference could be held to see what amendments could be agreed upon.

To a question from newsmen whether Taft's statement concerning him might be an obstacle to such a conference, Durkin replied: "I don't think so."

Durkin, who has said that Taft-Hartley Law should be amended, reiterated that Taft's statement contained "no personal attack on me."

Durkin predicted that relations between labor and the Eisenhower administration would be "very good."

"Labor wants to see him do good and will give him every assistance to make his administration a successful one," he said. Durkin expressed a personal belief that federal labor laws generally needed a "basic overhauling." Taft has said he favors changes in the Taft-Hartley Law.

Durkin declared he never had talked to Taft and had met Eisenhower for the first time only last Friday. He had no idea, he asserted, who might have offered his name as a possibility for the government labor post.

Says Oust Russia From The UN For "Treason" Acts

NEW YORK, Dec. 4 (AP)—Republican Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin urged tonight that a new "get tough" foreign policy for the Eisenhower administration include a move to expell Russia from the United Nations for "treason."

McKeldin, who nominated Eisenhower for the presidency and a recent visitor at general's headquarters, said in a speech prepared for delivery before the Thoroughbred Racing Association:

"We must call for a show-down with Russia within the framework of the United Nations. To do this, we must demand that the U. N. commit all members to stop shipments of materials or supplies which might, in any way, render aid to the North Korean or Communist Chinese armies.

Oust Russia From UN

"If Russia and her satellites oppose this—as we assume they shall—we must openly charge Russia with aiding and, indeed, directing the aggression in Asia.

"We must, in effect, charge Russia with treason against the United Nations. It must be decided whether Russia, under the circumstances, shall continue to enjoy the privileges of United Nations membership."

In Baltimore, McKeldin said through a spokesman the foreign policy ideas expressed in his speech were primarily his own, although he said he had discussed them with some "national people" he did not otherwise identify.

The Maryland governor also called for use of Chinese Nationalist armies in the "fight for their land" and a blockade of the Chinese mainland.

Step Up Propaganda

Turning to Europe, McKeldin called for a stepping up of the propaganda war against Russia to "keep before the peoples of the world the true character of the Kremlin conspirators—the character of slave drivers."

"We shall keep alive the memory," he said, "of . . . Christians—Protestant and Catholic—who have been martyred for despots . . . we shall actively strive and encourage others to strive for freedom of religious and political prisoners of the tyrants under the hammer and sickle.

"We shall not let the current revelation of Communist anti-Semitism become a passing issue as similar revelations have in the past."

McKeldin said that "we have millions of potential friends . . . who yearn for freedom and want to do something about it, but who don't know what to do."

"We shall show them what to do, he said, "and even help them to do it—not in full-fledged rebellion for the present but with constant, tormenting rebellion nevertheless—certainly something better than the negative policy of containment under which Communism now is meekly accepted."

Labor Censure Move Defeated By Vote

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill's supporters tonight easily smashed an official Labor party attempt to censure his Conservative government as incompetent and inept.

The House of Commons rejected the censure motion by a vote of 304 to 280; this was a margin of 24 votes as against the Conservatives' normal margin of 17.

Hard Coal Miners Get $1.90 Boost

C. C. Killingsworth Replaces Cox In WSB

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP)—President Truman tonight accepted the resignation of Archibald Cox as chairman of the Wage Stabilization Board (WSB) and named Charles C. Killingsworth to replace him.

Cox quit in protest against Truman's decision to overrule the board in the soft coal wage increase case. Truman ordered approval of the full $1.90 a day increase negotiated by John L. Lewis for his United Mine Workers. The board had voted against any increase beyond $1.50 a day, on the ground it would be inflationary.

Had Been Vice Chairman

Killingsworth, the new board chairman, is a 35-year old economics professor from Michigan State College. He had been vice chairman.

Despite the speedy shift in chairmen, the wage board was unable to function because of a boycott by its six industry members, who had sided with Cox and the five other public members in the mine wage dispute.

The industry members called a meeting for tomorrow at which they may decide whether to follow Cox's lead and resign. Some of them at least were believed certain to pull out. One told a reporter the President's action made a "mockery" of the board's work.

The increase granted by the President was for diggers of soft coal.

Grant $1.90 Boost

Late today the government approved a daily wage boost of about $1.90 for hard coal miners.

Economic Stabilizer Roger Putnam wrote a letter to the WSB saying Truman's soft coal decision "of course would extend to any other similar contract involving coal mining." Thus he directed the board to stamp approval on the raise negotiated by the hard coal men.

It was uncertain just when the board would be able to comply with Putnam's order, because of its disorganized state.

Mother, Three Children Killed

SUNNYDALE, Calif., Dec. 4 (AP)—A 37-year-old mother put her three children in the family car, went to a railway crossing and apparently drove the machine deliberately in front of an oncoming train today.

Deputy Coroner G. C. Bowers said all were killed. He identified them as Mrs. Sedora Wilson, her son John, 10, and two daughters, Sedora, 9, and Cirica, 7. Bowers said he found this folded note in Mrs. Wilson's purse, addressed to her husband, Jack Wilson, a commercial artist:

"Dear Jack: I am in the basement. I had to do it. There are letters in my purse and in the drawer in my room."

Highway patrolmen said witnesses told them they had seen Mrs. Wilson stop at the railroad crossing signal at Corey Avenue, then drive in front of the oncoming train.

Only minutes before the tragedy, Mrs. Wilson, accompanied by the children, had driven her husband to work.

Bowers said Mrs. Wilson was treated recently at a hospital for a "highly nervous condition."

Russia Backs Polish Envoy For UN Job

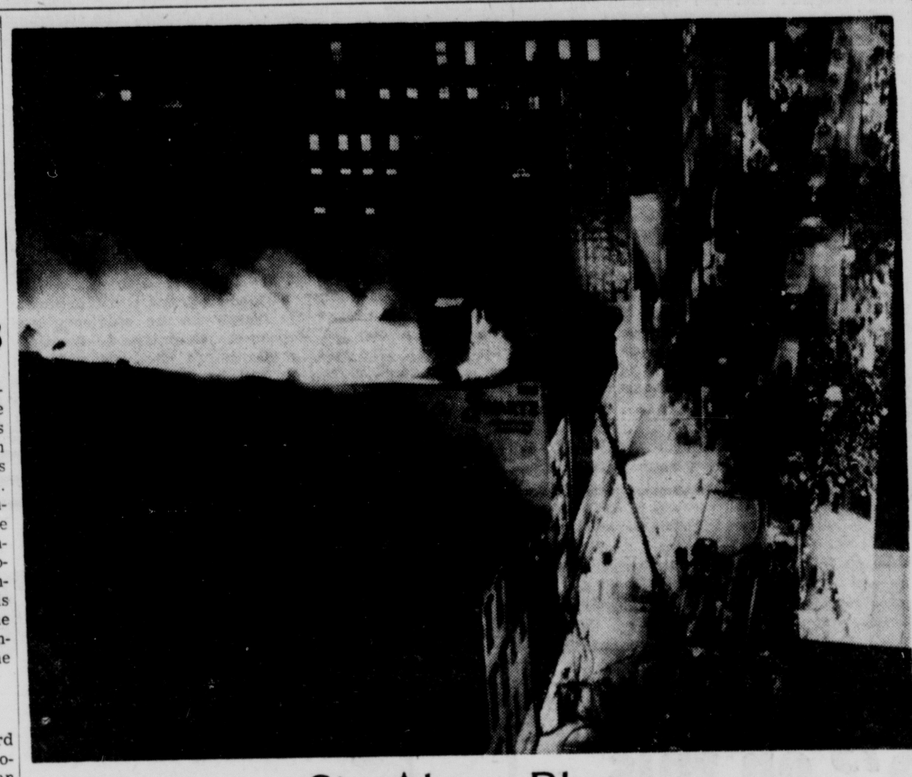

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Dec. 4 (AP)—Russia's Andrei A. Gromyko said today the Soviet Union backs Poland's Foreign Minister Stanislaw Skrzesezewski for the job of U. N. secretary general now held by Trygve Lie.

The Western Powers are sure to oppose this choice.

Gromyko volunteered the information when asked whether Russia had requested a Security Council meeting to take up the issue. He said the Soviet delegation had not asked for any such meeting "but we have a candidate of our own."

Six-Alarm Blaze

The roof of the Swartz furniture company five-story building in the heart of the business section of Philadelphia starts to collapse during a six-alarm blaze last night which snarled traffic for hours as most downtown district stores were open for mid-week night hours. Firemen brought the fire under control but damage was not estimated. (AP Wirephoto)

New Cutbacks Are Ordered In British Defense

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill today announced a new cutback in the British defense effort to minimize the entanglement of the nation's economy in an inflationary spiral.

He did not specify the size of the cut in his statement to a packed and attentive House of Commons. But he made it clear the action was designed to protect Britain's financial solvency.

"Some curtailment must now be made," Churchill said. "This will, to some extent, involve the cancellation or modification of contracts already placed.

The reductions will, so far as possible, be brought about by spreading deliveries of equipment over a longer period. It will, however, not be possible to solve the problem entirely by spreading deliveries forward into future months or years."

This was the method used in the first cutback. Churchill's Conservative government announced last winter that Britain's long range, 13 billion dollar rearmament program, first put forward late in 1950, had been extended a year beyond the originally planned three years because of manpower and steel shortages and the effects of the nation's economic crisis. Last July Churchill warned that a further curb would be necessary to prevent "a plunge into bankruptcy."

Referring to aircraft, Churchill said today his government will reduce somewhat "the production of types now in service, but we shall continue to press forward as rapidly as possible with the introduction of the newer and the still more advanced types."

Further, Churchill stressed that Britain is as determined as ever to carry her full share in the efforts of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Britain is now spending 1,462,000,000 pounds $4,093,000,000 a year for defense. More than a third of this goes for new weapons.

Three People Die In Bank Robbery

MT. VERNON, Ky., Dec. 4 (AP)—An attempt to rob the bank of Mt. Vernon resulted today in the death of three people—two in an automobile wreck involving the fleeing bandit's car and one of a heart attack.

State police said Gillus Allen, 37, the unsuccessful robber, drove his automobile into the path of an oncoming vehicle while fleeing from the scene.

Allen died in Berea College Hospital shortly afterward, and Enoch Ward, of Conway, riding in the second car, was killed outright.

Leonard Davis, a deputy sheriff, dropped dead of a heart attack when he and officers chasing Allen arrived at the scene of the wreck.

No money was taken from the bank.

Donnelly Resigns

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP) — Walter J. Donnelly, one of the top career diplomats in the State department, has resigned as U. S. high commissioner to Germany, officials said today.

Footsore Collie Follows Family Across Nation

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Dec. 4 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Moses of Michigan City are convinced that a footsore collie that walked into their yard Wednesday is Clancy, a pup they last saw in Buffalo, N. Y., six months ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Moses said they gave the pup to a Buffalo baker before they moved to Michigan City. They heard later that Clancy ran off.

The Moses' three children have another dog named Clancy now—a cocker spaniel—but the sorefooted collie has a home, whatever his name.

Reds Break Off Attacks

SEOUL, Friday, Dec. 5 (AP)—The Chinese Communists broke off their attacks on Sniper Ridge on the Central Front Thursday after 24 hours of close-in battle in the coldest weather of the year.

South Korean defenders stood firm in bitter cold of two below zero as the Reds threw in small but savage and persistent attacks in the blackness before sunrise.

The Communists had occupied positions on Pinpoint Hill—dominating height on Sniper Ridge—in bitter hand-to-hand combat Wednesday. But counter-attacking South Koreans drove the Reds off Wednesday night.

The Communists then struck back with a thrust which was blunted shortly after midnight in a four and a half hour fight. The final Red assault, by about 40 men, came at 5:55 a. m. and was halted.

The Eighth Army tactical summary listed only small probes and patrol action across the remainder of the 155-mile front.

Newsman Dies

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Dec. 4 (AP) — John H. Perry Sr., owner of the multi-million dollar Western Newspaper Union and a number of Florida and Kentucky newspapers and radio stations, died today at 71.

Eighteen UN Employes Are Fired By Lie

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Dec. 4 (AP)— Eighteen American U. N. employes who refused to answer U. S. federal inquiries on subversion have been fired or will be dismissed tomorrow by Secretary-General Trygve Lie, U. N. sources said tonight.

Nine of them already have been fired for balking at questions of the U. S. Senate internal security subcommittee headed by Sen. Pat McCarran (D-Nev) or queries of New York federal grand juries.

Lie To Report

The other nine refused today to give what Lie regarded as satisfactory answers at his own follow up inquiry and are to be let out tomorrow, the sources said, when Lie makes a public report.

Six of those already bounced were ousted by the U. N. since the McCarran committee began public anti-Red dragnet hearings in New York in October. The other three of these were fired earlier in the year.

The nine expected to be fired tomorrow have been on special leave with pay by order of Lie since their McCarran committee appearances.

Of those already fired, Lie had announced six dismissals earlier from time to time. Three were new. It was the first disclosure of this total of nine fired.

A U. N. spokesman recalled tonight that Lie said when previously announcing some firings that he had acted not only because of refusal to testify but on further evidence supplied to him by U. S. security agencies.

Since then Lie has had the advice this week of a three-man panel of international lawyers on how to deal with Americans under fire who work for him.

Recommend Firing

The jurists recommended that Lie fire any employe who refused to answer questions about alleged links with the Communist party or anti-American espionage because such refusal created a "climate of suspicion."

Lie had given the nine pending until noon today to tell him the answers to the questions they had dodged. Their replies to Lie were reported unsatisfactory.

Scores Hotly Contested Win Over Haywood

466,078 Vote Edge Given Auto Head

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 4 (AP) — Dynamic Walter P. Reuther was elected president of the CIO today in a political scrap winding up the labor group's annual convention.

Reuther, 45-year-old chief of the CIO's million-member auto workers union, was selected in a hotly-contested balloting over Allan S. Haywood, veteran 64-year-old executive vice president of the organization.

The voting was 3,079,181 for Reuther, and 2,613,103 for Haywood, based on the CIO's claimed membership of 5,692,284. Reuther thus won by 466,078 votes.

The red-haired Reuther, perhaps best known for his many proposals for social change in the United States, succeeds the late Philip Murray who had guided the CIO for a dozen years before his sudden death Nov. 9.

Despite the bitter battle between the opposing Reuther and Haywood forces, both sides pledged afterward to bury the hatchet and work together in the future.

In a speech accepting the CIO's top post, Reuther pledged to follow in Murray's footsteps and said he intended to build the CIO into a bigger and more effective labor organization as a monument to Murray's memory.

Reuther said "the fat men sitting on plush cushions in the Union League Clubs across the country" will be fooled if they think the CIO will split apart.

"We are not going out of here divided," he declared. "We are going out here united to carry on until we win."

After Reuther was elected CIO president, Haywood, amid much praise for his long work in the labor movement, was unanimously re-elected as executive vice-president. James B. Carey, head of the CIO's electrical workers union, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Reuther became the third president in the CIO'c 17-year-history. The first was John L. Lewis, now president of the independent United Mine Workers union; the second was Murray.

The CIO, which was formed in 1935 when it splintered off from the AFL to organize some of the mass production industries, also took steps to renew negotiations with the AFL looking toward reuniting the two union organizations.

The convention adopted a resolution calling for more cooperation between the two and an eventual merger if it could be arranged.

The fight between Reuther and Haywood forces was essentially one pitting the CIO's two biggest unions in a test for dominance in CIO affairs.

Reuther's auto workers union was the core of his support, while Haywood's main strength came from the steelworkers union. The auto and steel unions claim more than a million members each.

Searchers Find Wrecked Plane

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., Dec. 4 (AP) — Aerial searchers reported today that wreckage and bodies were sighted 11,000 feet high on Mt. San Gorgonio, apparently sealing the fate of an Air Force C-47 plane missing since Monday night with 13 men aboard.

Maj. James McCall, March air pilot, reported to Capt. Howard K. Hoover, search mission commander, that he had sighted the wreckage and indicated that the ship burned in the crash.

Marine helicopter pilots reported sighting bodies strewn about the wreckage fuselage.

The lettering "MATS" (Military Air Transport Service) was discernible on the tail section. Positive identification of the wreckage as that of the missing plane awaited arrival at the scene of ground parties, dispatched to climb the 11,485-foot mountain through deep snow and extremely rugged terrain. The peak towers above the desert between Palm Springs and Riverside.

The plane was en route from Offutt AFB, Omaha, Neb., to March AFB, Riverside, Calif., and had refueled at Tuscon, Ariz. The pilot last reported Monday night at 13,000 feet over Palm Springs, Calif. He was given clearance, in the stormy night, to cross San Gorgonio Pass at that altitude, then desend on the west side of the mountain for a radar approach to March AFB.

Lattimore Case Goes To Jury

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP) — The government gave the controversial case of Owen Lattimore to a Federal Grand Jury today, asking the jurors to decide whether the Far Eastern expert should be indicted for perjury.

The Senate's internal security subcommittee contends that Lattimore told "flagrant" falsehoods when he was grilled for 12 days last spring about Communist connections and what influence he wielded on America's postwar policy in the Far East.

When he was challenged by the Senators about contradictions in his testimony, Lattimore said they were lapses in memory about trivial things many years ago.

Lattimore is director of a school of international relations at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore. For a time after the war he also served as a consultant to the State Department on Far Eastern affairs.

Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) has accused him of being the chief Soviet spy in the United States, a charge Lattimore has denied vigorously.

Construction Worker Is Fatally Injured

PATUXENT, Md., Dec. 4 (AP) — Lewis Green, about 26, of Park Fairfax, Va., was fatally injured today when a crane toppled into a pit where he was working at the Patuxent Naval Air Station.

Green civilian employe on a contract construction job, was operating a bulldozer in the pit when the crane fell from its position above ground, crushing the man and his machine.

Probers Accuse Government Lawyers Of "Loose Ethics"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP) — House investigators today accused some government attorneys of loose ethical standards and recommended tightening of the entire body of law covering bribery, gratuities and "kick-backs."

"When lawyers who have the United States itself as their client lapse into practices such as fee-splitting, bribe-taking and double-dealing, prejudicing their client for personal gain and advantage, it is time for drastic measures," they asserted.

The criticisms were contained in the seventh of a series of reports by a House judiciary subcommittee on the results of its investigation of the Justice Department.

Investigators exempted Atty. Gen. McGranery from their hard-handed treatment of what they found to be a "wholly shameful" situation within the department in past years.

But they concluded:

"Far too many of our government leaders have suffered from 'Washington conscience.'

"This unpardonable justification that 'everybody is doing it' must be stopped."

As a "fair example of the difficulties that arise when ethical standards are loosely imposed," the subcommittee cited the actions of James A. Mullally, a former Justice Department attorney.

Mullally resigned earlier this year as a lawyer in the Justice Department Criminal Division after being suspended pending an investigation of his "outside activities." The subcommittee said he had accepted a fee in connection with a government case against the Carnation Milk Company.

The milk company was found by the Food and Drug Administration to be shipping a deficient product in interstate commerce in the fall of 1945.

Five-Months-Old Baby Dies Following Attack By Rats

EASTON, Md., Dec. 4 (AP) — A frail, five-month-old baby girl died at Memorial Hospital today of fearful rat bites after being rushed here from Denton.

The baby was Kathryn Ann, born prematurely to Mrs. Irving Siegler, who took up residence only recently with her husband's grandparents in a miserable four-room house at the west edge of Denton. The baby's father is in the armed forces.

Mrs. Seigler discovered the tragedy as she was fixing the baby's 6:30 a. m. bottle.

A doctor summoned to the house found the baby's nose, adjacent parts of the face, the upper lip, about a third of one cheek and part of the gums all gone.

He concluded the injuries were so terrible only quick blood transfusions could save the baby. It died within 20 minutes after an ambulance brought it to the hospital here.

Talbot county authorities declined to give any information about the case, saying it was a matter for Caroline county authorities at Denton.

A doctor who attended the baby said the fact it was born prematurely and was weak probably was the reason it did not cry out loudly enough to wake the mother when it was attacked.

Neighbors said the husband's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Youman, moved to Denton about a year ago from Georgia and have worked at an explosives plant at Chestertown. The family has from time to time received help from the Red Cross and the County Welfare Department.

Mrs. Seigler has three other children by a previous marriage.

Gov. McKeldin Urges 'Get Tough' Foreign Policy For New Regime

Says Oust Russia From The UN For "Treason" Acts

NEW YORK, Dec. 4 (AP)—Republican Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin urged tonight that a new "get tough" foreign policy for the Eisenhower administration include a move to expell Russia from the United Nations for "treason."

"When lawyers who have the United States itself as their client lapse into practices such as fee-splitting, bribe-taking and double-dealing, prejudicing their client for personal gain and advantage, it is time for drastic measures," they asserted.

The criticisms were contained in the seventh of a series of reports by a House judiciary subcommittee on the results of its investigation of the Justice Department.

Investigators exempted Atty. Gen. McGranery from their hard-handed treatment of what they found to be a "wholly shameful" situation within the department in past years.

But they concluded:

"Far too many of our government leaders have suffered from 'Washington conscience.'

"This unpardonable justification that 'everybody is doing it' must be stopped."

As a "fair example of the difficulties that arise when ethical standards are loosely imposed," the subcommittee cited the actions of James A. Mullally, a former Justice Department attorney.

Mullally resigned earlier this year as a lawyer in the Justice Department Criminal Division after being suspended pending an investigation of his "outside activities." The subcommittee said he had accepted a fee in connection with a government case against the Carnation Milk Company.

The milk company was found by the Food and Drug Administration to be shipping a deficient product in interstate commerce in the fall of 1945.

C. C. Killingsworth Replaces Cox In WSB

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP)—President Truman tonight accepted the resignation of Archibald Cox as chairman of the Wage Stabilization Board (WSB) and named Charles C. Killingsworth to replace him.

Cox quit in protest against Truman's decision to overrule the board in the soft coal wage increase case. Truman ordered approval of the full $1.90 a day increase negotiated by John L. Lewis for his United Mine Workers. The board had voted against any increase beyond $1.50 a day, on the ground it would be inflationary.

Had Been Vice Chairman

Killingsworth, the new board chairman, is a 35-year old economics professor from Michigan State College. He had been vice chairman.

Despite the speedy shift in chairmen, the wage board was unable to function because of a boycott by its six industry members, who had sided with Cox and the five other public members in the mine wage dispute.

The industry members called a meeting for tomorrow at which they may decide whether to follow Cox's lead and resign. Some of them at least were believed certain to pull out. One told a reporter the President's action made a "mockery" of the board's work.

The increase granted by the President was for diggers of soft coal.

Grant $1.90 Boost

Late today the government approved a daily wage boost of about $1.90 for hard coal miners.

Economic Stabilizer Roger Putnam wrote a letter to the WSB saying Truman's soft coal decision "of course would extend to any other similar contract involving coal mining." Thus he directed the board to stamp approval on the raise negotiated by the hard coal men.

It was uncertain just when the board would be able to comply with Putnam's order, because of its disorganized state.

Mother, Three Children Killed

SUNNYDALE, Calif., Dec. 4 (AP)—A 37-year-old mother put her three children in the family car, went to a railway crossing and apparently drove the machine deliberately in front of an oncoming train today.

Deputy Coroner G. C. Bowers said all were killed. He identified them as Mrs. Sedora Wilson, her son John, 10, and two daughters, Sedora, 9, and Cirica, 7. Bowers said he found this folded note in Mrs. Wilson's purse, addressed to her husband, Jack Wilson, a commercial artist:

"Dear Jack: I am in the basement. I had to do it. There are letters in my purse and in the drawer in my room."

Highway patrolmen said witnesses told them they had seen Mrs. Wilson stop at the railroad crossing signal at Corey Avenue, then drive in front of the oncoming train.

Only minutes before the tragedy, Mrs. Wilson, accompanied by the children, had driven her husband to work.

Bowers said Mrs. Wilson was treated recently at a hospital for a "highly nervous condition."

Labor Censure Move Defeated By Vote

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill's supporters tonight easily smashed an official Labor party attempt to censure his Conservative government as incompetent and inept.

The House of Commons rejected the censure motion by a vote of 304 to 280; this was a margin of 24 votes as against the Conservatives' normal margin of 17.

Russia Backs Polish Envoy For UN Job

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Dec. 4 (AP)—Russia's Andrei A. Gromyko said today the Soviet Union backs Poland's Foreign Minister Stanislaw Skrzesezewski for the job of U. N. secretary general now held by Trygve Lie.

The Western Powers are sure to oppose this choice.

Gromyko volunteered the information when asked whether Russia had requested a Security Council meeting to take up the issue. He said the Soviet delegation had not asked for any such meeting "but we have a candidate of our own."

Six-Alarm Blaze

The roof of the Swartz furniture company five-story building in the heart of the business section of Philadelphia starts to collapse during a six-alarm blaze last night which snarled traffic for hours as most downtown district stores were open for mid-week night hours. Firemen brought the fire under control but damage was not estimated. (AP Wirephoto)

New Cutbacks Are Ordered In British Defense

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill today announced a new cutback in the British defense effort to minimize the entanglement of the nation's economy in an inflationary spiral.

He did not specify the size of the cut in his statement to a packed and attentive House of Commons. But he made it clear the action was designed to protect Britain's financial solvency.

"Some curtailment must now be made," Churchill said. "This will, to some extent, involve the cancellation or modification of contracts already placed.

The reductions will, so far as possible, be brought about by spreading deliveries of equipment over a longer period. It will, however, not be possible to solve the problem entirely by spreading deliveries forward into future months or years."

This was the method used in the first cutback. Churchill's Conservative government announced last winter that Britain's long range, 13 billion dollar rearmament program, first put forward late in 1950, had been extended a year beyond the originally planned three years because of manpower and steel shortages and the effects of the nation's economic crisis. Last July Churchill warned that a further curb would be necessary to prevent "a plunge into bankruptcy."

Referring to aircraft, Churchill said today his government will reduce somewhat "the production of types now in service, but we shall continue to press forward as rapidly as possible with the introduction of the newer and the still more advanced types."

Further, Churchill stressed that Britain is as determined as ever to carry her full share in the efforts of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Britain is now spending 1,462,000,000 pounds $4,093,000,000 a year for defense. More than a third of this goes for new weapons.

Three People Die In Bank Robbery

MT. VERNON, Ky., Dec. 4 (AP)—An attempt to rob the bank of Mt. Vernon resulted today in the death of three people—two in an automobile wreck involving the fleeing bandit's car and one of a heart attack.

State police said Gillus Allen, 37, the unsuccessful robber, drove his automobile into the path of an oncoming vehicle while fleeing from the scene.

Allen died in Berea College Hospital shortly afterward, and Enoch Ward, of Conway, riding in the second car, was killed outright.

Leonard Davis, a deputy sheriff, dropped dead of a heart attack when he and officers chasing Allen arrived at the scene of the wreck.

No money was taken from the bank.

Donnelly Resigns

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP) — Walter J. Donnelly, one of the top career diplomats in the State department, has resigned as U. S. high commissioner to Germany, officials said today.

Footsore Collie Follows Family Across Nation

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Dec. 4 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Moses of Michigan City are convinced that a footsore collie that walked into their yard Wednesday is Clancy, a pup they last saw in Buffalo, N. Y., six months ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Moses said they gave the pup to a Buffalo baker before they moved to Michigan City. They heard later that Clancy ran off.

The Moses' three children have another dog named Clancy now—a cocker spaniel—but the sorefooted collie has a home, whatever his name.

Reds Break Off Attacks

SEOUL, Friday, Dec. 5 (AP)—The Chinese Communists broke off their attacks on Sniper Ridge on the Central Front Thursday after 24 hours of close-in battle in the coldest weather of the year.

South Korean defenders stood firm in bitter cold of two below zero as the Reds threw in small but savage and persistent attacks in the blackness before sunrise.

The Communists had occupied positions on Pinpoint Hill—dominating height on Sniper Ridge—in bitter hand-to-hand combat Wednesday. But counter-attacking South Koreans drove the Reds off Wednesday night.

The Communists then struck back with a thrust which was blunted shortly after midnight in a four and a half hour fight. The final Red assault, by about 40 men, came at 5:55 a. m. and was halted.

The Eighth Army tactical summary listed only small probes and patrol action across the remainder of the 155-mile front.

Eighteen UN Employes Are Fired By Lie

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Dec. 4 (AP)— Eighteen American U. N. employes who refused to answer U. S. federal inquiries on subversion have been fired or will be dismissed tomorrow by Secretary-General Trygve Lie, U. N. sources said tonight.

Nine of them already have been fired for balking at questions of the U. S. Senate internal security subcommittee headed by Sen. Pat McCarran (D-Nev) or queries of New York federal grand juries.

Lie To Report

The other nine refused today to give what Lie regarded as satisfactory answers at his own follow up inquiry and are to be let out tomorrow, the sources said, when Lie makes a public report.

Six of those already bounced were ousted by the U. N. since the McCarran committee began public anti-Red dragnet hearings in New York in October. The other three of these were fired earlier in the year.

The nine expected to be fired tomorrow have been on special leave with pay by order of Lie since their McCarran committee appearances.

Of those already fired, Lie had announced six dismissals earlier from time to time. Three were new. It was the first disclosure of this total of nine fired.

A U. N. spokesman recalled tonight that Lie said when previously announcing some firings that he had acted not only because of refusal to testify but on further evidence supplied to him by U. S. security agencies.

Since then Lie has had the advice this week of a three-man panel of international lawyers on how to deal with Americans under fire who work for him.

Recommend Firing

The jurists recommended that Lie fire any employe who refused to answer questions about alleged links with the Communist party or anti-American espionage because such refusal created a "climate of suspicion."

Lie had given the nine pending until noon today to tell him the answers to the questions they had dodged. Their replies to Lie were reported unsatisfactory.

Five-Months-Old Baby Dies Following Attack By Rats

EASTON, Md., Dec. 4 (AP) — A frail, five-month-old baby girl died at Memorial Hospital today of fearful rat bites after being rushed here from Denton.

The baby was Kathryn Ann, born prematurely to Mrs. Irving Siegler, who took up residence only recently with her husband's grandparents in a miserable four-room house at the west edge of Denton. The baby's father is in the armed forces.

Mrs. Seigler discovered the tragedy as she was fixing the baby's 6:30 a. m. bottle.

A doctor summoned to the house found the baby's nose, adjacent parts of the face, the upper lip, about a third of one cheek and part of the gums all gone.

He concluded the injuries were so terrible only quick blood transfusions could save the baby. It died within 20 minutes after an ambulance brought it to the hospital here.

Talbot county authorities declined to give any information about the case, saying it was a matter for Caroline county authorities at Denton.

A doctor who attended the baby said the fact it was born prematurely and was weak probably was the reason it did not cry out loudly enough to wake the mother when it was attacked.

Neighbors said the husband's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Youman, moved to Denton about a year ago from Georgia and have worked at an explosives plant at Chestertown. The family has from time to time received help from the Red Cross and the County Welfare Department.

Mrs. Seigler has three other children by a previous marriage.

Scores Hotly Contested Win Over Haywood

466,078 Vote Edge Given Auto Head

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 4 (AP) — Dynamic Walter P. Reuther was elected president of the CIO today in a political scrap winding up the labor group's annual convention.

Reuther, 45-year-old chief of the CIO's million-member auto workers union, was selected in a hotly-contested balloting over Allan S. Haywood, veteran 64-year-old executive vice president of the organization.

The voting was 3,079,181 for Reuther, and 2,613,103 for Haywood, based on the CIO's claimed membership of 5,692,284. Reuther thus won by 466,078 votes.

The red-haired Reuther, perhaps best known for his many proposals for social change in the United States, succeeds the late Philip Murray who had guided the CIO for a dozen years before his sudden death Nov. 9.

Despite the bitter battle between the opposing Reuther and Haywood forces, both sides pledged afterward to bury the hatchet and work together in the future.

In a speech accepting the CIO's top post, Reuther pledged to follow in Murray's footsteps and said he intended to build the CIO into a bigger and more effective labor organization as a monument to Murray's memory.

Reuther said "the fat men sitting on plush cushions in the Union League Clubs across the country" will be fooled if they think the CIO will split apart.

"We are not going out of here divided," he declared. "We are going out here united to carry on until we win."

After Reuther was elected CIO president, Haywood, amid much praise for his long work in the labor movement, was unanimously re-elected as executive vice-president. James B. Carey, head of the CIO's electrical workers union, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Reuther became the third president in the CIO'c 17-year-history. The first was John L. Lewis, now president of the independent United Mine Workers union; the second was Murray.

The CIO, which was formed in 1935 when it splintered off from the AFL to organize some of the mass production industries, also took steps to renew negotiations with the AFL looking toward reuniting the two union organizations.

The convention adopted a resolution calling for more cooperation between the two and an eventual merger if it could be arranged.

The fight between Reuther and Haywood forces was essentially one pitting the CIO's two biggest unions in a test for dominance in CIO affairs.

Reuther's auto workers union was the core of his support, while Haywood's main strength came from the steelworkers union. The auto and steel unions claim more than a million members each.

Searchers Find Wrecked Plane

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., Dec. 4 (AP) — Aerial searchers reported today that wreckage and bodies were sighted 11,000 feet high on Mt. San Gorgonio, apparently sealing the fate of an Air Force C-47 plane missing since Monday night with 13 men aboard.

Maj. James McCall, March air pilot, reported to Capt. Howard K. Hoover, search mission commander, that he had sighted the wreckage and indicated that the ship burned in the crash.

Marine helicopter pilots reported sighting bodies strewn about the wreckage fuselage.

The lettering "MATS" (Military Air Transport Service) was discernible on the tail section. Positive identification of the wreckage as that of the missing plane awaited arrival at the scene of ground parties, dispatched to climb the 11,485-foot mountain through deep snow and extremely rugged terrain. The peak towers above the desert between Palm Springs and Riverside.

The plane was en route from Offutt AFB, Omaha, Neb., to March AFB, Riverside, Calif., and had refueled at Tuscon, Ariz. The pilot last reported Monday night at 13,000 feet over Palm Springs, Calif. He was given clearance, in the stormy night, to cross San Gorgonio Pass at that altitude, then desend on the west side of the mountain for a radar approach to March AFB.

Adlai, Truman Agree To Serve Public Interest

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson, the unsuccessful Democratic nominee for president, said today he and President Truman are agreed that "party interests must be subordinated to the interests of the country and the public welfare."

"We do not intend to try to influence Democrats in Congress to obstruct, delay or in any way imperil the national welfare and the new administration's program insofar as it is compatible with the views of our party," Stevenson said.

The Illinois governor, who came here yesterday to discuss the party's future with Truman, had an amiable session with reporters at the White House, where he is a guest.

The Democrats' two major problems, he said, are to pay off a deficit of more than half a million dollars and to "serve the public interest."

"Our job now," he said, "is to recognize that the Democratic party can regain public confidence, and esteem only to the extent that it serves the national interest."

Rain And Snow Moves Eastward Across Nation

[By The Associated Press]

A wide belt of rain, freezing rain and snow, extending from Tennessee northward to the Canadian border, moved slowly eastward across the nation Thursday. It stretched from eastern Minnesota to Ohio.

Temperatures in most cases were moderate for this time of year.

It rained in parts of Oregon and Washington on the Pacific Coast and light snow fell in sections of New England and the northern Rockies.

The rest of the country mostly enjoyed fair weather.

The weather bureau said the precipitation belt would hit sections of New York and Pennsylvania Friday.

Comic Book Gave Youthful Felons Idea To Break Jail

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP) — House investigators of indecent literature heard today how two juveniles were inspired by a crime comic book to try to break out of a Maryland jail.

It came out in testimony by David C. Cook, head of a religious publishing firm of Elkton, Ill., who charged that comic books stressing crime influence youngsters.

Cook's statement was presented by David Heller, Silver Spring, Md.

Cook related information he said was obtained from Roy Bright, probation officer for the juvenile Court of Prince Georges County.

Bright's story was that two unidentified juvenile offenders in jail at Upper Marlboro, charged with car theft, called their jailer to report that faucets in the wash basin would not shut off and the water was overflowing.

"When the jailer entered the cell to try to halt the flow of water," the account said, "he was struck viciously over the head with a deadly weapon — an improvised blackjack. The young offenders had twisted the knobs off the water faucets, put them in a bag and made a blackjack, their idea was to knock the jailer unconscious, steal his keys and escape.

"Fortunately, the plan didn't work. Although badly hurt, the jailer prevented their escape.

"Afterwards, when the young offenders were being questioned about this second serious crime-assault and attempted escape — they were asked where they got the idea.

"They got it from a crime comic book, there, outlined as completely as a blueprint was a scheme for escaping from jail."

Cook said the probation officer examined the comic book and can verify this account. The statement did not indicate when the attempted escape took place.

Plane Carries 2 Jet Fighters

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP) — Soviet Russia has developed a mother plane which can carry two jet fighters around at high altitude until they are needed for combat, Jane's "All the World's Aircraft" said today.

The unofficial but authoritative aviation handbook described the flying aircraft carriers as a modified version of the four-engined TU4, a Soviet copy of the U. S. Air Force B29 Superfortress.

Jane's edition for 1952-53, out today, said the TU4s have been fitted with a girder-type structure on the leading edge of each wing to which MIG15 jet fighters—the kind met by U. S. pilots in the air over Korea—can hook themselves after takeoff. The fighters can disengage when enemy planes are sighted.

The object of the mother plane-fighter combination is to conserve fuel which the short-range jets otherwise would have to burn while climbing into action.

The new method seems to adapt a ferrying idea used in experimental work of other nations in the past. An F84 Thunderjet was dropped last spring from a U. S. Air Force B36. B29s have been used in launching speedy research planes such as the X1 and the Navy Skyrocket.

Nancy Sinatra's Jewelry Is Stolen

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 4 (AP) — Mrs. Nancy Sinatra's missing jewels apparently were taken by burglars, police said today although they couldn't discover just where the prowlers entered the house.

The divorced wife of singer Frank Sinatra placed the value of the gems at some $18,000 after a check with an insurance agent. Det. Lieut. G. H. Armstrong said earlier she had reported approximately $30,000 worth missing.

The jewels were taken from a drawer of a bedroom vanity, Armstrong said. They included a ring, a wristwatch, a bracelet set with diamonds, earrings and a brooch. The valuables were insured except that the diamond ring was not covered for its full value, Armstrong reported.

Grenade Explodes Near Czech Legation

TEL AVIV, Israel, Dec. 4 (AP)—A hand grenade was hurled at the Czechoslovak Legation tonight. Reliable sources said the explosion caused no damage or injuries.

It was believed the perpetrators were protesting against anti-semitic and anti-Israel overtones stemming from the treason trial in Prague last week.

Boltons, Mother-Son Congress Duo, Form Newest Of Political Families

By DAVID A. HELLER
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Is politics in America becoming a family affair? There seems to be ample evidence that it is. Many of our leading families have produced more than one prominent political leader.

The recent elections have turned up two interesting cases in point: a mother-son combination and an uncle-nephew team in Congress.

When Oliver Bolton was recently elected to the House of Representatives from Ohio, representing the 11th District, he was strictly a Johnny-come-lately to the august legislative halls so far as the Bolton family is concerned. Bolton's mother, Mrs. Frances Bolton, has already served eight terms in the House and his father, the late Chester C. Bolton, served five terms in Congress.

From deep down in Dixie, Louisiana sent its fourth member of the Long family to Congress. Dr. George S. Long of Pineville, La., has been elected to the House.

If the labyrinth of Washington bureaucracy proves baffling, Dr. George will be able to turn to his nephew, Russell, for advice. Russell has been a member of the United States Senate since 1948, and is still the youngest member of that body.

Representative Long is the brother of the late Huey (The Kingfish) Long, who has become legendary in American politics after meeting death from an assassin's bullet. Russell's mother, Rose McConnell Long, has also served as a member of the United States Senate. A fifth member of the Long family, Earl, is a former governor of Louisiana.

Two sons of presidents of the United States will sit in the next Congress. They are Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio and Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., of New York.

Senator Taft comes from a family long connected with American politics. His father, William Howard Taft, was President, chief justice of the Supreme Court, and held several other highly important posts. Senator Taft's brother, Charles, was a candidate for governor of Ohio.

Representative Roosevelt's relatives on both sides have been deeply immersed in politics. His father, the immortal FDR, was the only four-time President of the United States, and his great uncle on his mother's side, Theodore Roosevelt, also held the same office. His mother is a delegate to the United Nations, and his brother, James, is a former candidate for governor of California.

Almost every state has one or more favorite political families. Some have several. This year's senatorial contest in Massachusetts, for example, was virtually turning back the pages of history, for the ancestors of both candidates had previously battled each other for the post.

The grandfather of the Republican candidate, Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., had jousted with the grandfather of the Democratic candidate, Rep. John F. Kennedy, for the senator's job from Massachusetts more than two decade ago. The Lodges won the first contest but the Kennedys got the nod on this last one.

The victory of the elder Lodge over Kennedy's grandfather proved historically important, for it was he who led the successful fight against the United States joining the League of Nations. Kennedy's father has also been active in politics, having served as ambassador to Great Britain under FDR.

Another famous Massachusetts political family are the Adams'. John Adams was the first vice president and the second President of the United States. His son, John Quincy Adams, was also President. Henry Adams and Charles Francis Adams also held various political posts.

The LaFollettes, the famous political family from Wisconsin, are temporarily in eclipse, but when the family's political fortunes were high Badger State voters sent Robert LaFollette, Sr., and then Robert, Jr., to the United States Senate and made son and brother Philip LaFollette, governor of Wisconsin.

Another fabulous political family are the Bayards of Delaware. Four generations of this family served in the United States Senate and one was also secretary of state of the United States. Alexis I. DuPont Bayard, the latest of the family to enter politics, was recently defeated for the post of United States senator by the incumbent, Senator John J. Williams.

One of the most famous political families in American history is the Harrison clan of Virginia and Indiana. Benjamin Harrison, a signer of the Declaration of Independence and governor of Virginia, started the family off on the political road. His son, William Henry Harrison, became the ninth President of the United States and his great-grandson, a second Benjamin Harrison, was the 23rd chief executive.

Even both of the presidential candidates in the last election came from families with other members active in public life. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's brother, Milton, held many signifcant public posts while the President-elect was an obscure Army major, and Gov. Adlai Stevenson's grandfather was vice president of the United States and his father was secretary of state of Illinois.

A bird closely allied to the whip-poor-will is found in the Western part of the United States and called the poor-will.

Boltons, Mother-Son Congress Duo, Form Newest Of Political Families

By DAVID A. HELLER
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Is politics in America becoming a family affair? There seems to be ample evidence that it is. Many of our leading families have produced more than one prominent political leader.

The recent elections have turned up two interesting cases in point: a mother-son combination and an uncle-nephew team in Congress.

When Oliver Bolton was recently elected to the House of Representatives from Ohio, representing the 11th District, he was strictly a Johnny-come-lately to the august legislative halls so far as the Bolton family is concerned. Bolton's mother, Mrs. Frances Bolton, has already served eight terms in the House and his father, the late Chester C. Bolton, served five terms in Congress.

Charged Air Of Korea

The atmosphere that General Eisenhower will find in Korea will be generally familiar to him because he knows war well. But it will be different from the atmosphere of Western Europe in 1944 and 1945, when the mighty forces under his command were sweeping inexorably eastward against the desperate Germans. Then the portent of victory was almost constantly at hand. In Korea today the atmosphere will be different.

Not that it is easy to say just what the air of Korea is like at this moment. But accounts of the long struggle in the Kumhwa sector now filtering through leave no doubt that responsible military men on the ground are presently in a somber frame of mind. Losses in six weeks of fighting for the Kumhwa ridges have been appalling. South Koreans have been in the forefront of the fighting.

Americans also took part in this fighting and they, too, suffered severely. Of course, it has not been a secret that losses have been heavy because casualty lists have been rising since just before election day. But now it is known definitely that the informal ceasefire that lasted a year and granted the enemy a breathing spell has been over for months.

Early in October the Communists struck in considerable strength at several points along the line but were repulsed with severe losses. They gained enough, however, so that the UN high command felt the position at Kumwha would become impossible if the Reds made only a slight further advance. So orders came to start an offensive to rectify the situation—and since October 15 American and South Korean troops have been trying to carry them out. They have yet to succeed, despite heavy casualties.

General Eisenhower will find the atmosphere at least sobering, if not full of threat, when he sets foot on Korean soil.

Now, At Prague

Trial for treason of 14 former Communist leaders in Czechoslovakia follows a pattern first established at Moscow in the notorious prewar purge trials. On that occasion was first revealed to an astounded world the spectacle of eminent bolshevist statesmen and soldiers "confessing" their "crimes" and beseeching the court for sentence of death.

Since the war this technique has been duplicated in the Soviet satellite countries. Czechoslovakia is the latest of the satellites to experience the bewilderment of Communist "justice." The basic motivation is transparent.

The Communist regime in Czechoslovakia has encountered grave difficulties in diverting the economic structure of this former democratic republic to armaments. The populace suffers from food shortages and want of fuel. The dullest citizen can see the contrast between living conditions under the prewar democratic regime and the postwar Communist dictatorship. The regime of President Klement Gottwald is in desperate need of scapegoats.

It found them in the trial for treason of 14 top Communist leaders. Through threats, isolation and a general process of softening up, which Arthur Koestler describes in his famous novel, "Darkness at Noon," the 14 defendants are "confessing." One of them has pleaded to be hanged.

In such fashion is it sought to explain Czechoslovakia's desperate economic crisis. Details are incidental. If there is a power shortage, a food shortage, a shortage of electric current for light and other domestic uses, a shortage of railroad transportation, it is all due to deliberate treason in the form of sabotage. Such is the burden of the "confessions."

No Monopoly Afloat

One of the newest ideas affecting air operations aboard aircraft carriers has been broached by the British Navy and will be adopted, on an experimental basis at least, by the U. S. Navy.

This consists of the rather revolutionary proposal of bringing in planes about to land on carrier flight decks on a course which is at an angle to the ship's center line. By making landings on the diagonal of the large rectangular flight deck, the actual landing area can be increased by as much as a fifth.

The U. S. Navy has already started experimenting with one of its large Essex class carriers along these lines and will graft two triangular sections on to the flight deck forward and aft.

This will provide landing paths which will take planes farther from the "island" superstructure of the carrier, and enable them to clear planes which have already landed and are stacked up forward, with wings folded, waiting to be elevatored to the hangar deck below.

The idea seems to have been born of necessity caused by the greater landing speeds of the new jet fighters and the sky-high cost of building new carriers and remodeling old ones. For the U. S. Navy the plan may prove to be an excellent stopgap pending the construction of the two huge Forrestal-class supercarriers, which will not be afloat for another year.

Heretofore the U. S. has enjoyed a virtual monopoly on carrier tactics because this country developed most of them under pressure of the air war in the Pacific. But the monopoly has not extended to include all new and good ideas.

Code For Government

Codes of ethics have an undoubted value as standards of conduct which, through prolonged observance, often come to have a binding force. Medicine, law, advertising, business in general, all have ethical codes, written or unwritten, which are held to be in the interests of the participants and in the larger public interest which is thus served.

Committees of Congress have, from time to time, concerned themselves with a possible ethical code for government, thus far without result. The impulse receives impetus from the address to a college alumni group of Representative Armstrong of Missouri. The Congressman proposes a code of ethics for all federal officials "from the President to the janitor in the court house."

The Armstrong code would pledge an official to consider his job a public trust, to observe the Constitution and all laws, to spend full time on the job, never to dispense or accept special favors, to refuse to profit from inside information and to do his utmost to get other officials to observe the code.

It is a simple prescription, not difficult to observe, that might be considered a minimum statement of the obvious had it not so often been breached.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Rheumatoid Arthritis In Children

Arthritis has no regard for the young or the old, the rich or the poor. Its only preferences are for the white race and women; in adults, the women are favored by at least two to one. Rheumatoid arthritis may begin as early as 1 year of age and the peaks in children are age 3 and between 8 and 11.

In youngsters, the condition is known as Still's disease in honor of George Frederick Still who in 1897 described a special type of arthritis which he thought was limited to children. We now know there is no basic difference between this disorder and the rheumatoid arthritis of adults. Variations occur because little ones react to the disease in a different manner. The pattern deviates also because arthritis affects the growth of developing boys and girls and vice versa.

The disturbance may make its debut in an insidious manner. The child tires so easily he no longer is interested in vigorous play. Appetite lessens, with a resultant loss of weight and the feeling of well being. Pain and stiffness of one or more joints is complained of and the disease may be confined to one knee or to a vertebra of the neck. The lower back and sacroiliac joint rarely if ever are involved, in marked contrast to adult arthritis.

Juvenile rheumatoid arthritis runs an explosive course when it begins abruptly with pain and swelling of several joints along with high fever, enlarged spleen, and anemia. These youngsters are acutely ill for several weeks before the disturbance starts to subside. Few diseases are as unpredictable; the progress may appear to be terminated at any time, only to recur with renewed force. Occasionally it disappears for years and cases have been observed in which remission lasted 14 years. At the other extreme are those who suffer year after year without the slightest letup. For example, distress is better in the knee one day but worse the next. Meanwhile the fingers, jaw, neck, and toes reacting in the same way. This shifting type of pain and stiffness proves most disconcerting.

The new hormones have come to the rescue of these arthritic kiddies. The administration of cortisone or ACTH is followed by rapid and striking relief of pain, swelling, stiffness, and malaise. The changes are little short of miraculous but after the drug is stopped symptoms may return. The hormones offer a much needed breathing spell, however, and the child is given an opportunity to regain strength and develop in a more normal fashion.

The early stage of rheumatoid arthritis is difficult to distinguish from rheumatic fever. The physician often is criticized for his hesitancy in arriving at a diagnosis. In some instances, time alone tells the story because rheumatic fever rarely persists and the joint changes are not permanent. Meanwhile, treatment is somewhat the same and in this respect no harm is done nor does the youngster lose ground.

TOMORROW: Better outlook in lip cancer.

TB IMMUNITY

G. T. writes: If a person has had a minimal case of tuberculosis, is he immune the rest of his life?

REPLY

No. Although most of us possess a relatively high degree of native resistence to tuberculosis, one attack does not confer the same type of immunity as an attack of measles or scarlet fever does. If anything, one bout of tuberculosis makes a person more susceptible.

BLOOD VESSEL DISEASE

R. L. E. writes: What is cardiovascular-renal disease?

REPLY

This term denotes a circulatory disturbance that affects the blood vessels (vascular) leading to the heart (cardio) and to other areas such as the brain and the kidneys (renal). In many instances, the basic origin of the condition is hardening of the arteries and/or high blood pressure.

TYPES OF DRUGS

R. T. writes: What is the difference between the antibiotics and the sulfonamides?

REPLY

The sulfonamides are chemical antiseptics whereas the antibiotics (from antibiosis: pitting one drug against another) are extracts obtained from growing organisms such as fungi and bacteria. These secretions are capable of inhibiting the growth of some bacteria and "killing" others. Of the several hundred antibiotics discovered, only a handful are of practical value.

PAINFUL CALVES

B. H. A. writes: The calves of my legs pain me a great deal. There is no swelling. Would the application of heat be of any value?

REPLY

There are many causes of painful legs varying from poor circulation to arch disturbances. Heat should be used cautiously if examination discloses that impaired circulation is responsible.

Eisenhower Faces Problem Of Uniting Korea Or Withdrawing Altogether; GOP Policy Has Demanded Aggressive Action Against Communism

(Ed. Note — In the following column in Drew Pearson's series on what Eisenhower faces in the Orient, he describes the hazardous future of a divided Korea.)

WASHINGTON—In the summer of 1945, while Gen. Eisenhower was resting from his victory over Germany, there were planted in Korea the seeds of difficulty which he must try to unravel today.

This was a headlong rush by the Siberian Red army south to take Korea; matched by a similar rush by the American army under MacArthur north to take Korea.

Faced with a possible clash by two supposedly allied, but potentially hostile armies, their commanders did what Eisenhower did when he withdrew American troops to the river Elbe. They drew a line along the 38th Parallel, and each stopped on its own side.

Russia, which stayed in the north, got 56 per cent of the territory, one-third of the people, the lion's share of the minerals, 50 per cent of the gold, most of the coal, iron, and water power.

The United States, which remained in the south, got 44 per cent of territory, two-thirds of the people, the best of the farm land, the best climate, fisheries, and a small amount of industry.

It was this unfortunate, ungainly division which planted the seeds of the present war. For the two sections of Korea have far less chance of existing separately than did our North and South in the 1860's.

It should have been no surprise, however, that the Red army would "rush" Korea. For 80 years, Moscow has cast a greedy eye at the peninsula, has coveted its long shoreline, has realized its strategic location. Because the army that controls this peninsula jutting out into the Japan sea is an ever-present danger to the seething, bustling, potentially powerful empire of Japan.

In fact, it is said that the army that controls Korea can dominate much of Northern Asia.

Ancient Battle Ground

Twenty years ago, when transportation was relatively old fashioned, I crossed the narrow strait separating Japan from the tip end of Korea in an antiquated South Manchurian RR ferry-boat in a matter of hours. Today by airplane it's a matter of minutes.

This strait is the bottleneck of the Japan Sea. The nation which guards both the Korean and the Japanese side of the narrow waterway can dominate shipping into Vladivostok, at times bottle up Eastern Siberia.

And the nation which has its army on the Korean peninsula, almost cheek and jowl with Japan, is an ever-ready threat to our No. 1 bastion of defense against Asiatic communism.

That is why Korea has been ravaged and fought over since before the days of Christ. That is why its fields have been wasted, its hills eroded, its people conquered.

There was a time when Korea was the religious center of the Orient, admired by China and Japan alike for its art, science, architecture, and literature; when it produced the first encyclopedia, the first astronomical observatory, the first ironclad warships. But most of the time, and especially in recent years, its great importance has been geographic.

That is what Gen. Eisenhower faces today. Though his mission is to carry out his pledge to work out "an early and honorable end" to the fighting, actually he will have to consider the over-all question of Pacific policy.

GOP Policy In Pacific

And if he follows the policies urged by his new secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, and of his congressional leaders to take a more vigorous stand against Asiatic communism, he will have to move forward, not out of Korea.

For the repeated demand of Republican leaders, from Speaker Joe Martin to Minnesota's Congressman Judd in the House, to Taft and Bridges of New Hampshire in the Senate, is that the United States must take a firmer, more aggressive stand against communism in Asia.

Korea cannot be divorced from that stand.

This is why, even before Korea became a hot issue in the Presidential campaign, or before it was ever suggested that Eisenhower go there, Gen. Mark Clark began sounding out the Pentagon, not regarding a withdrawal, but an advance.

This was the backstage reason for reports that General Clark had asked for three more U. S. divisions. Actually he had not asked for them. He had only sounded out the Pentagon. But the plan for their use has been under definite discussion just the same.

This plan calls for a troop buildup during the winter with a full offensive in the spring. The Navy and Marine Corps urge another amphibious landing behind enemy lines as part of the plan; while the use of Chinese Nationalists from Formosa is also under consideration.

Peace Hangs In Balance

These are the problems Eisenhower will have to decide after he becomes President. They are delicate, difficult problems, which cannot be decided on his trip to Korea. Nor can they be decided by the outgoing administration.

However, a decision will have to be made fairly soon, for a big offensive takes months of careful preparation.

The new commander-in-chief as a military man should be well-equipped to make the decision in a manner to inspire public confidence. But along with this military decision must be weighed some vitally important political decisions.

No. 1—Will our UN allies go along with us on an all-out offensive in Korea? The French and British have held back of late; in fact, our UN allies seem even more anxious to wash their hands of Korea than the discouraged American public.

No. 2—Will Moscow retaliate in another part of the world if we start an offensive in Korea? Will she go into Iran while we are busy in Korea? Or will she intensify the attack on Indo-China? Or will she do both? It is perfectly feasible for Moscow to use the troops of satellite countries in various remote parts of the world where we cannot easily retaliate—even if we would.

These are the difficult, almost insoluble problems the President-elect faces on his trip to the Orient.

Vishinsky And Korea

It startled many of the UN delegates, including American and British officials, when Vishinsky pushed himself out of the regular order to speak against the awkward Indian proposal for a settlement of the Korean War. It was not expected that Soviet Russia would be so adamantly opposed to the Indian plan, which from no standpoint can be regarded as favorable to the United States.

The gist of the Indian proposal is that a United Nations commission of five be appointed to deal with the question of prisoners of war, two from Communist nations, two from neutral nations, with an umpire.

To grasp why Vishinsky jumped the gun in this curious way, one has to go back to the bible of Stalinism, the "Foundations of Leninism," written by none other than Joe Stalin, himself. This book is a blueprint for Soviet action and it answers many obscure questions. For this must never be forgotten: the Russians do not employ empirical means in the course of building their-empire. They have set goals from which they never deviate. Their line may zig-zag but the goal is fixed. And their ultimate aim is a world Bolshevik revolution. So let us quote an interesting passage which is directly pertinent to the Vishinsky response to the Indian proposal for the settlement of the Korean War:

"Tactics are the determination of the line of conduct of the proletariat for the comparatively short period of the ebb or flow of the movement, of the rise or decline of the revolution, the struggle to carry out this line by replacing old forms of struggle and of organization by new ones, old slogans by new ones, by combining these forms, etc. While the aim of strategy is to win the war. . . against the bourgeoisie, to carry the struggle . . . to its end, tactics concern themselves with less important aims, as they strive, not to win the war as a whole, but rather to win a particular engagement, or a particular battle; to carry through successfully a particular campaign or action corresponding to the concrete circumstances of the rise or decline of the revolution. Tactics are a part of strategy, subordinate and subservient to it."

Lenin, with a tiny party, unfavorably received by most of his countrymen, with a small leadership of a handful of intellectuals, conquered his own country by sheer impudence at a moment of political vacuum. But conquering Russia, even in 1917, was no small matter. It gave to theoretical Marxism, a base with the largest land area on earth and about 180,000,000 people. Lenin's problem was to reorientate this people into Bolshevism. Trotzky rebuilt it as a military force. Stalin developed it into an industrialized state capable of modern military action. These three built the new Russian Empire. To Stalin goes the further credit of duping Franklin D. Roosevelt and of achieving for Russia the position of the second world state — second only to the United States.

In human history, the second has always insisted upon becoming first and that has been cause of the great wars. Since 1943, the active aim of Soviet Russia has been the destruction of the United States. As matters now stand, the Korean War is a Russian instrument for bleeding the United States economically, while pinning down American forces in an untenable position. Every effort that American diplomacy and military strategy has made to free itself from the Korean War has thus far been thwarted by Soviet Russia which does not want that war to end.

We are precisely where we were in June 1951, while the Communists have improved their military position and have made our alliance with Great Britain precarious. The real danger is that should Aneurin Bevan ever reach power in Great Britain, the Russians would have the advantage in that country, which would then become neutral but in the hands of Socialists.

John Foster Dulles, the impending secretary of State, is a student of Maxist and Stalinist doctrine, and he ought to be in a position to anticipate rather than to follow Stalin's moves.

The advantage to us is that Stalin does not wander far from orthodox Leninism; Stalin's advantage heretofore has been the ignorance of our statesmen on this subject.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — There's a bit of clumsiness, if not political amateurishness, in the way the Eisenhower appointments to the cabinet have been handled. While a good cabinet has been selected, the process by which the decisions were arrived at may rise to plague the new administration unless it faces some realities about Washington habits and manners as well as traditions.

Senator Taft should not have been provoked into expressing displeasure about the way the cabinet appointments were arranged. Yet to say this is not to imply that any other men should have been selected for the cabinet posts. There is a right way and a wrong way to play ball on a team, and the evidence thus far indicates that the Eisenhower staff are going to have to learn their "inside baseball" the hard way. This is regrettable because, when a "rift" starts between a new President and the man on whom he must depend for legislative co-operation in Congress, it doesn't mean merely that a difference has arisen between two individuals. It means that a cleavage of factionalism begins, and this tends to cause legislators to line up on one side or the other. Obviously the Eisenhower staff doesn't want to develop that kind of problem to add to the many other problems that will confront the new administration anyhow in the matter of appointments.

Initial Power Tremendous

Every new President has a tremendous power with Congress because he has so many favors to dispense. A President need not appoint incompetent persons just because a senator or representative recommends them. But, more often, when a dozen names are available and they are all good men, the balance can turn in favor of a friend of a member of Congress. The making of such an appointment tends more to enhance the prestige of the senator or representative with his constituents than it does to create any real obligation as between the appointee and the member of Congress. In every state and district a senator or representative who appears to be powerful enough to "get things done" in Washington for his home area thereby adds to his political strength with the electorate.

On the matter of cabinet appointments, it has been stated that Senator Taft feels that General Eisenhower should have cleared them with the senators whose constituents were being selected for these high offices, and that this is a Republican tradition. This is something called a gesture of "courtesy." But it is a tradition often broken in the past. If, moreover, General Eisenhower had asked Senator Dirksen of Illinois whether or not to appoint Martin P. Durkin as secretary of Labor, thech ances are the Illinois senator would have given a negative answer, and this would have gotten into the headlines as a "rift" between the President-elect and the Illinois senator.

Sometimes the President tells a senator of his intention to appoint a man from his state, but does not ask for his opinion. There is really no rule about it and no necessity to clear cabinet appointments with senators and representatives. There is, however, in the present situation as between Senator Taft and General Eisenhower a peculia set of circumstances. One man beat the other for the Presidential nomination, and then the loser turned around and did the traditional thing by supporting wholeheartedly the nominee of the convention. Hence it would have been tactful and politically wise if General Eisenhower had sat down with Senator Taft and told him why he planned to make certain appointments. It was a courtesy to which the Ohio senator was entitled, and Mr. Taft would have been the first to say that the President-elect had a right to make his own decisions.

Interchange Of Views Needed

What will tend to produce friction and difficulty for the future is a tendency on the part of General Eisenhower to deal with certain problems on a so-called "staff command" basis. He certainly cannot delegate to any member of his cabinet or to any assistant president or to anybody else the job of personal relations with Senator Taft or any of the other leaders. Unless there is a constant and free interchange of views at first hand, the Eisenhower administration is in for trouble.

In the Eisenhower entourage are men who may think they are familiar with national problems from what they have read in the papers, but not one of them seems to have had any experience in the delicate matter of relationship between the executive and the legislative branches of the government on political questions. There is no substitute for experience in this domain. Other administrations have had the same handicap at the start, and yet it need not become serious if the newcomers really grasp the fundamental point, which is that party harmony is as essential after a campaign as it was during the campaign.

When the general designated Herbert Brownell, the new attorney general, to "screen" cabinet appointments, he was turning over to a Dewey man something that anybody would have told him could mean friction. Mr. Brownell should have been warned by the President-elect to be careful to consult Senator Taft all along the line. He isn't likely to make the same mistake again.

Errors like these are not unnatural with the President-elect virtually forced by events and his trip to Korea to appoint his cabinet within the first few weeks after election. When the President-elect gets back from Korea, he will find he will have to do a repair job of no small importance to the success of his legislative program in Congress.

Matter Of Fact

By STEWART ALSOP

The Incredible Mr. Durkin

WASHINGTON

The story of how Gen Eisenhower came to appoint Martin Durkin as secretary of Labor, an appointment which Sen. Robert A. Taft has angrily denounced as "incredible," tells a great deal about the next President of the United States. The story starts with a talk Eisenhower had on Nov. 21, with George Meany, new president of the American Federation of Labor.

Meany made a strong plea for the choice of a union man in the labor post. His theme was that Eisenhower was a national rather than a party leader; that labor had no quarrel with the appointment of able business men in important jobs; and that thus it was only fair that labor too should have a voice in the new administration. Eisenhower was strongly impressed by what Meany said.

He therefore instructed Attorney General-designate Herbert Brownell and other aides to cast around for a union man as Labor secretary. Meany had not proposed directly to Eisenhower the name of Martin Durkin, who is Meany's old friend and heir apparent. But he did make sure that Durkin's name should be considered by Brownell and the other Eisenhower aids. Investigation showed that Durkin had certain qualifications for the post.

Not Seriously Considered

In the first place, Durkin is a Catholic, and no Catholic had been appointed to Eisenhower's cabinet. Church dignitaries who were consulted highly recommended him as an outstanding Catholic layman. In the second place, Durkin, unlike most union leaders, has a record as successful administrator, having served ably for several years as the equivalent of secretary of Labor in Illinois. A careful, confidential investigation proved furthermore that Durkin, in his private affairs, is "as clean as a hound's tooth," to use a favorite Eisenhower phrase. Finally, Durkin is a man of substance in the labor movement, who would give the moderate wing of the movement, at least, a real sense of participation in the new administration.

Despite these qualifications, Durkin was not at first very seriously considered. Initially, the object was to find a man who had these qualifications, but who was also a Republican, and reasonably acceptable to Sen. Taft and the Taft Republicans. Yet it soon became clear that no such animal existed.

The appointment as Labor secretary of any one of the bedraggled remaining band of Republican trade unionists would have enraged virtually the entire labor movement. The two conservative Catholics proposed by Taft would certainly not have given labor the sense of participation which was Eisenhower's goal. Thus by a simple process of elimination, Eisenhower and Brownell began to consider Durkin really seriously, even though he was a Democrat who had supported Adlai Stevenson and called for the repeal of the Taft-Hartley Law.

The more Durkin's appointment was considered, the more advantages it seemed to offer. The total Democratic monopoly of labor support in the last election is a new phenomenon. In his New York campaign, Gov. Thomas Dewey depended on an important segment of support from the AFL, even in the New Deal days, as Brownell was well aware. In the long run, despite Eisenhower's personal triumph at the polls, the Democrats' labor monopoly is unhealthy for the Republican party, and here was a way to begin to break it.

The Democrats, moreover, are

Charged Air Of Korea

The atmosphere that General Eisenhower will find in Korea will be generally familiar to him because he knows war well. But it will be different from the atmosphere of Western Europe in 1944 and 1945, when the mighty forces under his command were sweeping inexorably eastward against the desperate Germans. Then the portent of victory was almost constantly at hand. In Korea today the atmosphere will be different.

Not that it is easy to say just what the air of Korea is like at this moment. But accounts of the long struggle in the Kumhwa sector now filtering through leave no doubt that responsible military men on the ground are presently in a somber frame of mind. Losses in six weeks of fighting for the Kumhwa ridges have been appalling. South Koreans have been in the forefront of the fighting.

Americans also took part in this fighting and they, too, suffered severely. Of course, it has not been a secret that losses have been heavy because casualty lists have been rising since just before election day. But now it is known definitely that the informal ceasefire that lasted a year and granted the enemy a breathing spell has been over for months.

Early in October the Communists struck in considerable strength at several points along the line but were repulsed with severe losses. They gained enough, however, so that the UN high command felt the position at Kumwha would become impossible if the Reds made only a slight further advance. So orders came to start an offensive to rectify the situation—and since October 15 American and South Korean troops have been trying to carry them out. They have yet to succeed, despite heavy casualties.

General Eisenhower will find the atmosphere at least sobering, if not full of threat, when he sets foot on Korean soil.

Now, At Prague

Trial for treason of 14 former Communist leaders in Czechoslovakia follows a pattern first established at Moscow in the notorious prewar purge trials. On that occasion was first revealed to an astounded world the spectacle of eminent bolshevist statesmen and soldiers "confessing" their "crimes" and beseeching the court for sentence of death.

Since the war this technique has been duplicated in the Soviet satellite countries. Czechoslovakia is the latest of the satellites to experience the bewilderment of Communist "justice." The basic motivation is transparent.

The Communist regime in Czechoslovakia has encountered grave difficulties in diverting the economic structure of this former democratic republic to armaments. The populace suffers from food shortages and want of fuel. The dullest citizen can see the contrast between living conditions under the prewar democratic regime and the postwar Communist dictatorship. The regime of President Klement Gottwald is in desperate need of scapegoats.

It found them in the trial for treason of 14 top Communist leaders. Through threats, isolation and a general process of softening up, which Arthur Koestler describes in his famous novel, "Darkness at Noon," the 14 defendants are "confessing." One of them has pleaded to be hanged.

In such fashion is it sought to explain Czechoslovakia's desperate economic crisis. Details are incidental. If there is a power shortage, a food shortage, a shortage of electric current for light and other domestic uses, a shortage of railroad transportation, it is all due to deliberate treason in the form of sabotage. Such is the burden of the "confessions."

No Monopoly Afloat

One of the newest ideas affecting air operations aboard aircraft carriers has been broached by the British Navy and will be adopted, on an experimental basis at least, by the U. S. Navy.

This consists of the rather revolutionary proposal of bringing in planes about to land on carrier flight decks on a course which is at an angle to the ship's center line. By making landings on the diagonal of the large rectangular flight deck, the actual landing area can be increased by as much as a fifth.

The U. S. Navy has already started experimenting with one of its large Essex class carriers along these lines and will graft two triangular sections on to the flight deck forward and aft.

This will provide landing paths which will take planes farther from the "island" superstructure of the carrier, and enable them to clear planes which have already landed and are stacked up forward, with wings folded, waiting to be elevatored to the hangar deck below.

The idea seems to have been born of necessity caused by the greater landing speeds of the new jet fighters and the sky-high cost of building new carriers and remodeling old ones. For the U. S. Navy the plan may prove to be an excellent stopgap pending the construction of the two huge Forrestal-class supercarriers, which will not be afloat for another year.

Heretofore the U. S. has enjoyed a virtual monopoly on carrier tactics because this country developed most of them under pressure of the air war in the Pacific. But the monopoly has not extended to include all new and good ideas.

Code For Government

Codes of ethics have an undoubted value as standards of conduct which, through prolonged observance, often come to have a binding force. Medicine, law, advertising, business in general, all have ethical codes, written or unwritten, which are held to be in the interests of the participants and in the larger public interest which is thus served.

Committees of Congress have, from time to time, concerned themselves with a possible ethical code for government, thus far without result. The impulse receives impetus from the address to a college alumni group of Representative Armstrong of Missouri. The Congressman proposes a code of ethics for all federal officials "from the President to the janitor in the court house."

The Armstrong code would pledge an official to consider his job a public trust, to observe the Constitution and all laws, to spend full time on the job, never to dispense or accept special favors, to refuse to profit from inside information and to do his utmost to get other officials to observe the code.

It is a simple prescription, not difficult to observe, that might be considered a minimum statement of the obvious had it not so often been breached.

Rheumatoid Arthritis In Children

Arthritis has no regard for the young or the old, the rich or the poor. Its only preferences are for the white race and women: in adults, the women are favored by at least two to one. Rheumatoid arthritis may begin as early as 1 year of age and the peaks in children are age 3 and between 8 and 11.

In youngsters, the condition is known as Still's disease in honor of George Frederick Still who in 1897 described a special type of arthritis which he thought was limited to children. We now know there is no basic difference between this disorder and the rheumatoid arthritis of adults. Variations occur because little ones react to the disease in a different manner. The pattern deviates also because arthritis affects the growth of developing boys and girls and vice versa.

The disturbance may make its debut in an insidious manner. The child tires so easily he no longer is interested in vigorous play. Appetite lessens, with a resultant loss of weight and the feeling of well being. Pain and stiffness of one or more joints is complained of and the disease may be confined to one knee or to a vertebra of the neck. The lower back and sacroiliac joint rarely if ever are involved, in marked contrast to adult arthritis.

Juvenile rheumatoid arthritis runs an explosive course when it begins abruptly with pain and swelling of several joints along with high fever, enlarged spleen, and anemia. These youngsters are acutely ill for several weeks before the disturbance starts to subside. Few diseases are as unpredictable; the progress may appear to be terminated at any time, only to recur with renewed force. Occasionally it disappears for years and cases have been observed in which remission lasted 14 years. At the other extreme are those who suffer year after year without the slightest letup. For example, distress is better in the knee one day but worse the next. Meanwhile the fingers, jaw, neck, and toes reacting in the same way. This shifting type of pain and stiffness proves most disconcerting.

The new hormones have come to the rescue of these arthritic kiddies. The administration of cortisone or ACTH is followed by rapid and striking relief of pain, swelling, stiffness, and malaise. The changes are little short of miraculous but after the drug is stopped symptoms may return. The hormones offer a much needed breathing spell, however, and the child is given an opportunity to regain strength and develop in a more normal fashion.

The early stage of rheumatoid arthritis is difficult to distinguish from rheumatic fever. The physician often is criticized for his hesitancy in arriving at a diagnosis. In some instances, time alone tells the story because rheumatic fever rarely persists and the joint changes are not permanent. Meanwhile, treatment is somewhat the same and in this respect no harm is done nor does the youngster lose ground.

TB IMMUNITY

G. T. writes: If a person has had a minimal case of tuberculosis, is he immune the rest of his life?

REPLY

No. Although most of us possess a relatively high degree of native resistence to tuberculosis, one attack does not confer the same type of immunity as an attack of measles or scarlet fever does. If anything, one bout of tuberculosis makes a person more susceptible.

BLOOD VESSEL DISEASE

R. L. E. writes: What is cardiovascular-renal disease?

REPLY

This term denotes a circulatory disturbance that affects the blood vessels (vascular) leading to the heart (cardio) and to other areas such as the brain and the kidneys (renal). In many instances, the basic origin of the condition is hardening of the arteries and/or high blood pressure.

TYPES OF DRUGS

R. T. writes: What is the difference between the antibiotics and the sulfonamides?

REPLY

The sulfonamides are chemical antiseptics whereas the antibiotics (from antibiosis: pitting one drug against another) are extracts obtained from growing organisms such as fungi and bacteria. These secretions are capable of inhibiting the growth of some bacteria and "killing" others. Of the several hundred antibiotics discovered, only a handful are of practical value.

PAINFUL CALVES

B. H. A. writes: The calves of my legs pain me a great deal. There is no swelling. Would the application of heat be of any value?

REPLY

There are many causes of painful legs varying from poor circulation to arch disturbances. Heat should be used cautiously if examination discloses that impaired circulation is responsible.

Eisenhower Faces Problem Of Uniting Korea Or Withdrawing Altogether; GOP Policy Has Demanded Aggressive Action Against Communism

(Ed. Note — In the following column in Drew Pearson's series on what Eisenhower faces in the Orient, he describes the hazardous future of a divided Korea.)

WASHINGTON—In the summer of 1945, while Gen. Eisenhower was resting from his victory over Germany, there were planted in Korea the seeds of difficulty which he must try to unravel today.

This was a headlong rush by the Siberian Red army south to take Korea; matched by a similar rush by the American army under MacArthur north to take Korea.

Faced with a possible clash by two supposedly allied, but potentially hostile armies, their commanders did what Eisenhower did when he withdrew American troops to the river Elbe. They drew a line along the 38th Parallel, and each stopped on its own side.

Russia, which stayed in the north, got 56 per cent of the territory, one-third of the people, the lion's share of the minerals, 50 per cent of the gold, most of the coal, iron, and water power.

The United States, which remained in the south, got 44 per cent of territory, two-thirds of the people, the best of the farm land, the best climate, fisheries, and a small amount of industry.

It was this unfortunate, ungainly division which planted the seeds of the present war. For the two sections of Korea have far less chance of existing separately than did our North and South in the 1860's.

It should have been no surprise, however, that the Red army would "rush" Korea. For 80 years, Moscow has cast a greedy eye at the peninsula, has coveted its long shoreline, has realized its strategic location. Because the army that controls this peninsula jutting out into the Japan sea is an ever-present danger to the seething, bustling, potentially powerful empire of Japan.

In fact, it is said that the army that controls Korea can dominate much of Northern Asia.

Ancient Battle Ground

Twenty years ago, when transportation was relatively old fashioned, I crossed the narrow strait separating Japan from the tip end of Korea in an antiquated South Manchurian RR ferry-boat in a matter of hours. Today by airplane it's a matter of minutes.

This strait is the bottleneck of the Japan Sea. The nation which guards both the Korean and the Japanese side of the narrow waterway can dominate shipping into Vladivostok, at times bottle up Eastern Siberia.

And the nation which has its army on the Korean peninsula, almost cheek and jowl with Japan, is an ever-ready threat to our No. 1 bastion of defense against Asiatic communism.

That is why Korea has been ravaged and fought over since before the days of Christ. That is why its fields have been wasted, its hills eroded, its people conquered.

There was a time when Korea was the religious center of the Orient, admired by China and Japan alike for its art, science, architecture, and literature; when it produced the first encyclopedia, the first astronomical observatory, the first ironclad warships. But most of the time, and especially in recent years, its great importance has been geographic.

That is what Gen. Eisenhower faces today. Though his mission is to carry out his pledge to work out "an early and honorable end" to the fighting, actually he will have to consider the over-all question of Pacific policy.

GOP Policy In Pacific

And if he follows the policies urged by his new secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, and of his congressional leaders to take a more vigorous stand against Asiatic communism, he will have to move forward, not out of Korea.

For the repeated demand of Republican leaders, from Speaker Joe Martin to Minnesota's Congressman Judd in the House, to Taft and Bridges of New Hampshire in the Senate, is that the United States must take a firmer, more aggressive stand against communism in Asia.

Korea cannot be divorced from that stand.

This is why, even before Korea became a hot issue in the Presidential campaign, or before it was ever suggested that Eisenhower go there, Gen. Mark Clark began sounding out the Pentagon, not regarding a withdrawal, but an advance.

This was the backstage reason for reports that General Clark had asked for three more U. S. divisions. Actually he had not asked for them. He had only sounded out the Pentagon. But the plan for their use has been under definite discussion just the same.

This plan calls for a troop build-up during the winter with a full offensive in the spring. The Navy and Marine Corps urge another amphibious landing behind enemy lines as part of the plan; while the use of Chinese Nationalists from Formosa is also under consideration.

Peace Hangs In Balance

These are the problems Eisenhower will have to decide after he becomes President. They are delicate, difficult problems, which cannot be decided on his trip to Korea. Nor can they be decided by the outgoing administration.

However, a decision will have to be made fairly soon, for a big offensive takes months of careful preparation.

The new commander-in-chief as a military man should be well-equipped to make the decision in a manner to inspire public confidence. But along with this military decision must be weighed some vitally important political decisions.

No. 1—Will our UN allies go along with us on an all-out offensive in Korea? The French and British have held back of late; in fact, our UN allies seem even more anxious to wash their hands of Korea than the discouraged American public.

No. 2—Will Moscow retaliate in another part of the world if we start an offensive in Korea? Will she go into Iran while we are busy in Korea? Or will she intensify the attack on Indo-China? Or will she do both? It is perfectly feasible for Moscow to use the troops of satellite countries in various remote parts of the world where we cannot easily retaliate—even if we would.

These are the difficult, almost insoluble problems the President-elect faces on his trip to the Orient.

Vishinsky And Korea

It startled many of the UN delegates, including American and British officials, when Vishinsky pushed himself out of the regular order to speak against the awkward Indian proposal for a settlement of the Korean War. It was not expected that Soviet Russia would be so adamantly opposed to the Indian plan, which from no standpoint can be regarded as favorable to the United States.

The gist of the Indian proposal is that a United Nations commission of five be appointed to deal with the question of prisoners of war, two from Communist nations, two from neutral nations, with an umpire.

To grasp why Vishinsky jumped the gun in this curious way, one has to go back to the bible of Stalinism, the "Foundations of Leninism," written by none other than Joe Stalin, himself. They have set goals from which they never deviate. Their line may zig-zag but the goal is fixed. And their ultimate aim is a world Bolshevik revolution. So let us quote an interesting passage which is directly pertinent to the Vishinsky response to the Indian proposal for the settlement of the Korean War:

"Tactics are the determination of the line of conduct of the proletariat for the comparatively short period of the ebb or flow of the movement, of the rise or decline of the revolution, the struggle to carry out this line by replacing old forms of struggle and of organization by new ones, old slogans by new ones, by combining these forms, etc. While the aim of strategy is to win the war. . . against the bourgeoisie, to carry the struggle . . . to its end, tactics concern themselves with less important aims, as they strive, not to win the war as a whole, but rather to win a particular engagement, or a particular battle; to carry through successfully a particular campaign or action corresponding to the concrete circumstances of the rise or decline of the revolution. Tactics are a part of strategy, subordinate and subservient to it."

Lenin, with a tiny party, unfavorably received by most of his countrymen, with a small leadership of a handful of intellectuals, conquered his own country by sheer impudence at a moment of political vacuum. But conquering Russia, even in 1917, was no small matter. It gave to theoretical Marxism, a base with the largest land area on earth and about 180,000,000 people. In human history, the second has always insisted upon becoming first and that has been cause of the great wars. Since 1943, the active aim of Soviet Russia has been the destruction of the United States. As matters now stand, the Korean War is a Russian instrument for bleeding the United States economically, while pinning down American forces in an untenable position. Every effort that American diplomacy and military strategy has made to free itself from the Korean War has thus far been thwarted by Soviet Russia which does not want that war to end.

We are precisely where we were in June 1951, while the Communists have improved their military position and have made our alliance with Great Britain precarious. The real danger is that should Aneurin Bevan ever reach power in Great Britain, the Russians would have the advantage in that country, which would then become neutral but in the hands of Socialists.

John Foster Dulles, the impending secretary of State, is a student of Maxist and Stalinist doctrine, and he ought to be in a position to anticipate rather than to follow Stalin's moves.

The advantage to us is that Stalin does not wander far from orthodox Leninism; Stalin's advantage heretofore has been the ignorance of our statesmen on this subject.

On the matter of cabinet appointments, it has been stated that Senator Taft feels that General Eisenhower should have cleared them with the senators whose constituents were being selected for these high offices, and that this is a Republican tradition. This is something called a gesture of "courtesy." But it is a tradition often broken in the past. If, moreover, General Eisenhower had asked Senator Dirksen of Illinois whether or not to appoint Martin P. Durkin as secretary of Labor, thech ances are the Illinois senator would have given a negative answer, and this would have gotten into the headlines as a "rift" between the President-elect and the Illinois senator.

Sometimes the President tells a senator of his intention to appoint a man from his state, but does not ask for his opinion. There is really no rule about it and no necessity to clear cabinet appointments with senators and representatives. There is, however, in the present situation as between Senator Taft and General Eisenhower a peculiar set of circumstances. One man beat the other for the Presidential nomination, and then the loser turned around and did the traditional thing by supporting wholeheartedly the nominee of the convention. Hence it would have been tactful and politically wise if General Eisenhower had sat down with Senator Taft and told him why he planned to make certain appointments. It was a courtesy to which the Ohio senator was entitled, and Mr. Taft would have been the first to say that the President-elect had a right to make his own decisions.

Interchange Of Views Needed

What will tend to produce friction and difficulty for the future is a tendency on the part of General Eisenhower to deal with certain problems on a so-called "staff command" basis. He certainly cannot delegate to any member of his cabinet or to any assistant president or to anybody else the job of personal relations with Senator Taft or any of the other leaders. Unless there is a constant and free interchange of views at first hand, the Eisenhower administration is in for trouble.

In the Eisenhower entourage are men who may think they are familiar with national problems from what they have read in the papers, but not one of them seems to have had any experience in the delicate matter of relationship between the executive and the legislative branches of the government on political questions. There is no substitute for experience in this domain. Other administrations have had the same handicap at the start, and yet it need not become serious if the newcomers really grasp the fundamental point, which is that party harmony is as essential after a campaign as it was during the campaign.

When the general designated Herbert Brownell, the new attorney general, to "screen" cabinet appointments, he was turning over to a Dewey man something that anybody would have told him could mean friction. Mr. Brownell should have been warned by the President-elect to be careful to consult Senator Taft all along the line. He isn't likely to make the same mistake again.

Errors like these are not unnatural with the President-elect virtually forced by events and his trip to Korea to appoint his cabinet within the first few weeks after election. When the President-elect gets back from Korea, he will find he will have to do a repair job of no small importance to the success of his legislative program in Congress.

Matter Of Fact

WASHINGTON

The story of how Gen Eisenhower came to appoint Martin Durkin as secretary of Labor, an appointment which Sen. Robert A. Taft has angrily denounced as "incredible," tells a great deal about the next President of the United States. The story starts with a talk Eisenhower had on Nov. 21, with George Meany, new president of the American Federation of Labor.

Meany made a strong plea for the choice of a union man in the labor post. His theme was that Eisenhower was a national rather than a party leader; that labor had no quarrel with the appointment of able business men in important jobs; and that thus it was only fair that labor too should have a voice in the new administration. Eisenhower was strongly impressed by what Meany said.

He therefore instructed Attorney General-designate Herbert Brownell and other aides to cast around for a union man as Labor secretary. Meany had not proposed directly to Eisenhower the name of Martin Durkin, who is Meany's old friend and heir apparent. But he did make sure that Durkin's name should be considered by Brownell and the other Eisenhower aids. Investigation showed that Durkin had certain qualifications for the post.

Not Seriously Considered

In the first place, Durkin is a Catholic, and no Catholic had been appointed to Eisenhower's cabinet. Church dignitaries who were consulted highly recommended him as an outstanding Catholic layman. In the second place, Durkin, unlike most union leaders, has a record as successful administrator, having served ably for several years as the equivalent of secretary of Labor in Illinois. A careful, confidential investigation proved furthermore that Durkin, in his private affairs, is "as clean as a hound's tooth," to use a favorite Eisenhower phrase. Finally, Durkin is a man of substance in the labor movement, who would give the moderate wing of the movement, at least, a real sense of participation in the new administration.

Despite these qualifications, Durkin was not at first very seriously considered. Initially, the object was to find a man who had these qualifications, but who was also a Republican, and reasonably acceptable to Sen. Taft and the Taft Republicans. Yet it soon became clear that no such animal existed.

The appointment as Labor secretary of any one of the bedraggled remaining band of Republican trade unionists would have enraged virtually the entire labor movement. The two conservative Catholics proposed by Taft would certainly not have given labor the sense of participation which was Eisenhower's goal. Thus by a simple process of elimination, Eisenhower and Brownell began to consider Durkin really seriously, even though he was a Democrat who had supported Adlai Stevenson and called for the repeal of the Taft-Hartley Law.

The more Durkin's appointment was considered, the more advantages it seemed to offer. The total Democratic monopoly of labor support in the last election is a new phenomenon. In his New York campaign, Gov. Thomas Dewey depended on an important segment of support from the AFL, even in the New Deal days, as Brownell was well aware. In the long run, despite Eisenhower's personal triumph at the polls, the Democrats' labor monopoly is unhealthy for the Republican party, and here was a way to begin to break it.

The Democrats, moreover, are

NOTE PARTNER'S CARDS

YOU CAN'T possibly be a good defensive player unless you take careful note of your partner's plays on all tricks. One time that his smallest card may be decisive is when the declarer is running the cards of a long suit. If the man across the table from you discards what is clearly his lowest in a particular suit, it indicates he is going to get rid of his holdings in that suit in order to retain something in another suit or suits. It is therefore nearly always incumbent on you to hold the suit in which he has weakened himself.

	♠ A K 7 5 ♥ 10 4 2 ♦ 10 ♣ Q J 10 8 3
♠ Q 6 3 ♥ Q J 9 5 ♦ K 9 6 5 ♣ 9 7	N W E S	♠ J 8 2 ♥ K 8 7 ♦ A Q 7 2 ♣ 6 5 2

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♣	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT

South held up his heart A until the third round as the Q and K took the first two tricks. Fearing that the defenders could peel off the setting tricks in diamonds and hearts if they got the lead, he couldn't afford to give up an early spade trick by means of a duck in order to establish a third one in that suit. So he decided to score the eight tricks available to him and go down one unless the defenders made a mistake somewhere along the line. Knowing them as none too good on the defense, he believed he might well count on them to help somehow if he gave them a chance.

So he followed the third heart with five consecutive club tricks, carefully watching the discards—something that his opponents neglected. East placed no importance on his partner's discard of the spade 3 on the third club trick or the 6 on the fourth one. When it was East's turn to discard on that fourth club, he chose his spade 2. You can easily see that this enabled South then with the spade A and K to clear out the defenders' spades and score two more himself in dummy, since he had used the 10 and 9 on the A and K to unblock.

If East had read West's spade 3 as proclaiming his abandonment of that suit in order to hold diamonds and his heart, East would have kept all his spades, thus making South's game impossible.

If North chooses 1-Heart for his opening bid, what would you consider logical bidding thereafter?

THINK BEFORE DOUBLING

EXCEPT when you can see clearly the likelihood of beating the opponents' suit bid two or three tricks—or the certainty of beating it one—a business double of a smoothly-reached contract is usually an unsound gamble. If you manage to beat it a single trick, you gain only 50 points by doubling when they are not vulnerable or 100 when they are vulnerable. The number of points you can increase their score by doubling is much more than that, if they make the contract, and several times your own potential if they eke out any extra trick or tricks. Therefore, you are giving heavy odds when you double them, so think hard before doing it.

	♠ A 10 3 ♥ A K 8 6 ♦ A 8 7 4 2 ♣ Q
♠ 6 ♥ J 10 5 4 3 ♦ J ♣ A 6 5 4 3 2	N W E S	♠ K Q 9 8 5 ♥ None ♦ K Q 10 9 6 5 3 ♣ 10

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	2 ♦	2 ♥	3 ♣
3 ♥	3 ♠	4 ♥	Dbl.

West's double was a very venturesome proposition, even with his five trumps and a side ace, though his partner had overcalled with two suits, showing pronounced strength with his "reverse bid" of the higher-ranking spades after calling diamonds. But the extreme distributional pattern disclosed by that calling indicated the chance that the opponents had a fine fit in their own suit and a desirable misfit on the side.

West started by scoring his club on the lead of East's 10, then repeated the suit with the 4. What profit that could give him is hard to understand, as East was marked as blank in hearts with North surely showing four in his opening call and South the remaining four in his free raise. North put a spade on that, East a diamond, and the club 8 won it. North now had West counted for six clubs and five hearts, as certainly East would have trumped that second club if possible.

North ran dummy's clubs, discarding a spade and two diamonds. After West followed suit then on the spade A and diamond A, the diamond 7 was ruffed by the heart Q, leaving West only trumps after discarding his last club. The spade 4 was ruffed by the heart J and over-ruffed by the A, the diamond 8 by the heart 9 and 10 to give West his second and last trick, and the last three tricks went to the heart 6, 8 and K.

Four Thanksgivings

The editor of The News
Sir:

I am a white man 46 years old, born in Maryland and a resident of that state for many years.

Just recently Thanksgiving Day was observed. This day was established some years ago and is observed annually in November.

With world conditions as they are there is a need for exerting all the good social influences possible. It is being felt that merely one day of thanksgiving observed annually is rather insufficient.

As a consequence of these attitudes the following proposal has been submitted to the Executive Offices of the Governor of Maryland:

That, in the State of Maryland, three days of thanksgiving be added to the present one. Of these three new days of thanksgiving:

One would be observed annually in February (winter).

One would be observed annually in May (spring).

One would be observed annually in August (summer).

The present one which is observed in November would, of course, be retained and it would be the fall (or autumn) day of thanksgiving. If adopted, the result would be quarterly Thanksgiving Days one for each season of the year.

Establishment of these extra days should afford and suggest more frequent opportunity for worthwhile thoughts and actions. The establishment of quarterly days of thanksgiving should be promoted and encouraged by citizens of Maryland.

Yours truly,
W. Russell McMenamin

Try these foods to take some of the high cost out of the easiest way of reducing!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

There's no hardships to dieting if you can afford to live on broiled lean meats, lightly seasoned fresh or frozen vegetables and unsugared fresh fruits. Because of their high nutritional and low caloric content, these foods can be taken in hunger-satisfying amounts without the danger of exceeding the daily total of 1220 calories permitted serious reducers.

The catch to that kind of reducing is the cost. While there is little you can do to get around the high price of the choice meats that can be broiled, there are ways of scouting the out-of-season prices of produce and its scarcity in some localities.

News For Dieters

The usual canned fruits and vegetables are not the suitable substitutes that they seem. The salt and sugar preservatives used in their processing make them far from ideal reducing foods.

However, there now are available on many grocer's shelves or by special order vegetables and fruits that are canned without these preservatives. Originally such products were designed as "dietetic" foods for sufferer's from various physical ills, but as more and more people have learned the advantages of keeping weight under control, the demand for these products has increased.

Among them you will find fruits, from peaches to whole-baked apples, that are water-packed without sugar and vegetables that are canned without salt or sweetening. One serving of these foods contains no more calories than an equal portion of the garden-fresh varieties.

Calorie Savers

Other calorie savers among the dietetic foods are a delicious salad dressing that contains around twenty calories per serving as opposed to the fifty or more in other types; tuna fish packed without the addition of oil; jams and jellies sweetened with a non-fattening sugar substitute. But such foods are not so calorie free that they can be used either lavishly or with an unstinted hand!

With these and similar short cuts, a pleasantly varied and sustaining reducing diet can be maintained with far less temptation to overages in either calories or marketing budgets. As a marketing guide and a meal-planning time saver, send for a copy of "Your Beauty Diet." It lists thirty-six menus adjusted so a dieter can eat at the same table with the rest of the family—without specially cooked foods! To get your copy, see the instructions below.

YOUR BEAUTY DIET

No matter what your weight problem — whether you want to gain, lose or remain the same — YOUR BEAUTY DIET will provide you with a safe and sane pattern of laboratory-tested menus that can be followed by the entire family according to each individual's needs. YOUR BEAUTY DIET is a way of eating, not starving, and the tasteful, appetizing meals it contains require no extra planning or preparation! Huge Trucks Go Round And Round In Highway Test

By RICHARD H. SYRING
Central Press Correspondent

MALAD CITY, Id.—If you happen to be in the vicinity of this town near the Idaho-Utah state line, you can be treated to a most dizzy sight.

Giant-size trucks go 'round and 'round two 2½-mile dumbbell-shaped ovals and positively get nowhere. But the dizzy-appearing maneuver will have a special meaning for engineers and road builders all over the nation.

Over these two ovals is being made a scientific attempt to settle the long-time bitter squabble between highway builders and truckers over how much damage heavy trucks do to roadways. Two pieces of specially-built test road have five different thicknesses. Over each section, trucks of varying weights will travel thousands of times. And at the same time, eagle-eyed engineers will watch for the first sign of pavement cracking.

The results won't be known officially until late next year. They may have an important bearing on how highways of the future are built. Most highway engineers now agree that the maximum truck load to an axle should be 18,000 pounds, or 32,000 pounds on a pair of axles. Some truckmen argue that the maximum load for two axles should be 36,000 pounds, or double the single axles.

Last year a test was made in Maryland over a special concrete highway, which engineers call the "rigid" type. It showed that trucks with 22,400 pounds axel load caused six times as much cracking as those with 18,000-pound loads. The 22,400-pound axel loads now are legal in 12 states, mostly those in the northeast.

The Idaho tests will be over highways covered with asphaltic concrete ("black top"), which is termed non-rigid. This area was chosen because it can get bitter cold in the winter and extremely hot in the summertime.

The Western Association of State Highway Officials is the top sponsor of the $500,000 joint project, with the states of Washington, Oregon, California, Nevada, New Mexico, Texas, Utah, Wyoming, Colorado and Idaho each contributing $30,000. The rest of the money comes from the trucking industry, petroleum haulers, the National Academy of Science's highway research board and the federal bureau of public roads.

Each of the test ovals has two 12-foot lanes. Thickness of the roadway varies—6, 10, 14, 18 and 22 inches. That means the thickness of the crushed rock, plus the surfacing. One oval, for example, has two-inch surfacing, the other four-inch.

The test on oval No. 1 calls for 18,000-pound loads on the outside lane and 22,400 on the inside lane. On the other oval, one lane carries trucks equipped with tandem axles (one axle immediately in front of the other), loaded with 32,000 pounds. The other lane has tandem-axled trucks loaded with 40,000 pounds.

Eight big carriers have come from the trucking industry for the test. Gas and oil costs are being underwritten by the petroleum industry. Trucks go around and around each 2½-mile oval for two 10-hour shifts daily, at a sustained speed of 30 to 35 miles an hour. The end of each oval is curved gradually enough to allow the big behemoths of the highways to go 35 miles an hour.

The tests will be abandoned in December for several months while the roadways undergo the periodic freezing and thawing common to this area in the wintertime. Toward spring, with the roadways softened up by Old Man Winter, tests will be resumed.

"We'll run the tests long enough in the spring to cause some distortion of the pavement," says W. C. Williams, assistant Oregon highway engineer who is chairman of the Western States advisory committe in charge of the project.

"The test," he adds, "will determin definitely and with positive factual data the type of design that must be used to provide maximum axle load weights on past, present and future highways."

The tests, too, will show states how to save a lot of money on highway construction. Many engineers now are undecided whether they are over-designing or under-designing present highways.

Mr. Motorist also is interested. It's his gas tax that builds much of the highways. And construction costs are no small item these days. A two-lane highway will average about $60,000 a mile, or double the cost of 1940. And that's assuming, of course, that grading is nominal.

Most highway engineers now are designing roadways 18 inches thick, including a four-inch surface. Many western states have thousands of miles of out-moded highways that are only 6 to 10 inches thick. The big test will demonstrate maintenance costs of these, as well as on the thicker, stronger roadways.

The results won't be known officially until late next year. They may have an important bearing on how highways of the future are built. Most highway engineers now agree that the maximum truck load to an axle should be 18,000 pounds, or 32,000 pounds on a pair of axles. Some truckmen argue that the maximum load for two axles should be 36,000 pounds, or double the single axles.

Last year a test was made in Maryland over a special concrete highway, which engineers call the "rigid" type. It showed that trucks with 22,400 pounds axel load caused six times as much cracking as those with 18,000-pound loads. The 22,400-pound axel loads now are legal in 12 states, mostly those in the northeast.

The Idaho tests will be over highways covered with asphaltic concrete ("black top"), which is termed non-rigid. This area was chosen because it can get bitter cold in the winter and extremely hot in the summertime.

The Western Association of State Highway Officials is the top sponsor of the $500,000 joint project, with the states of Washington, Oregon, California, Nevada, New Mexico, Texas, Utah, Wyoming, Colorado and Idaho each contributing $30,000. The rest of the money comes from the trucking industry, petroleum haulers, the National Academy of Science's highway research board and the federal bureau of public roads.

Each of the test ovals has two 12-foot lanes. Thickness of the roadway varies—6, 10, 14, 18 and 22 inches. That means the thickness of the crushed rock, plus the surfacing. One oval, for example, has two-inch surfacing, the other four-inch.

The test on oval No. 1 calls for 18,000-pound loads on the outside lane and 22,400 on the inside lane. On the other oval, one lane carries trucks equipped with tandem axles (one axle immediately in front of the other), loaded with 32,000 pounds. The other lane has tandem-axled trucks loaded with 40,000 pounds.

Eight big carriers have come from the trucking industry for the test. Gas and oil costs are being underwritten by the petroleum industry. Trucks go around and around each 2½-mile oval for two 10-hour shifts daily, at a sustained speed of 30 to 35 miles an hour. The end of each oval is curved gradually enough to allow the big behemoths of the highways to go 35 miles an hour.

The tests will be abandoned in December for several months while the roadways undergo the periodic freezing and thawing common to this area in the wintertime. Toward spring, with the roadways softened up by Old Man Winter, tests will be resumed.

"We'll run the tests long enough in the spring to cause some distortion of the pavement," says W. C. Williams, assistant Oregon highway engineer who is chairman of the Western States advisory committe in charge of the project.

"The test," he adds, "will determin definitely and with positive factual data the type of design that must be used to provide maximum axle load weights on past, present and future highways."

The tests, too, will show states how to save a lot of money on highway construction. Many engineers now are undecided whether they are over-designing or under-designing present highways.

Mr. Motorist also is interested. It's his gas tax that builds much of the highways. And construction costs are no small item these days. A two-lane highway will average about $60,000 a mile, or double the cost of 1940. And that's assuming, of course, that grading is nominal.

Most highway engineers now are designing roadways 18 inches thick, including a four-inch surface. Many western states have thousands of miles of out-moded highways that are only 6 to 10 inches thick. The big test will demonstrate maintenance costs of these, as well as on the thicker, stronger roadways.

The Old Second Guesser

by John Wheeler

Front Row On The Aisle

CINCINNATI, Ohio — Your reporter came out here on business and got a great welcome from old friends. They put me right down in the front row on the aisle. I guess I must have been lucky and hit the town when they had run out of big shots. Anyway, they are a cordial people which impresses one who is used to being shoved off the sidewalks in New York.

John Wheeler

Among other distinguished citizens, I met Sen. Robert A. Taft three times during my stay, and he is certainly an easy man to talk to. He answers questions freely and frankly with a grin. He is a good sport, for he didn't seem to be chagrined or downcast over his defeat in Chicago by a small margin, and he undoubtedly realizes more clearly than anyone else, if he had been the Republican candidate he would now be the President-elect. He only missed by a cat's whisker, but I could see no scars nor find any traces of disappointment and rancor. He spoke very favorably of Gen. Eisenhower, and predicted a good, sound administration.

One morning I went to a meeting attended by the senator, where I sat next to him, and some business matters came up for discussion. He carries a little pocket note book like I do and writes things down. I hope he can read his own chirography better than I can mine when I finish scribbling.

The next day Ben Tate invited me to lunch for about 20 at the Queen City Club to honor Dick Neville, a young man of 29, and a delegate at Chicago from New York. He had supported Senator Taft, who was present, too, making a seconding speech at the convention. Aside from the fact the host and toastmaster introduced the guest of honor a couple of times as "Dick Stokes," it was a fine affair.

Mr. Neville appealed to me. You may remember seeing him on television at the Republican Convention. He is a handsome fellow who made a fine record as a bomber pilot in the war and is now secretary of the DeMille Foundation. He makes you proud and confident of American youth. Also my middle name is Neville.

We all shook hands and left, and, as I was walking up the street, I passed the Sinton Hotel which brought back memories of my youth when I was traveling with the New York Giants. Garry Herrmann was then owner of the Cincinnati Reds, and he gave us waiting baseball writers a dinner there one night which was fancy enough to be sponsored by Diamond Jim Brady for a bunch of chorus girls. Champagne and other liquid refreshments ran like Tennyson's Brook, and we weren't inclined to overlook opportunities, as we were accustomed to beer.

The chow was superb, also. About two in the morning, one distinguished sports scribe got up to leave and must have had a puncture for he fell flat on his nose. We helped him to his feet and brushed him off. Old John Foster, the dean of the group, remarked thickly,

"Never in my life did I see a pigeon-toed man who was any good."

Needless to say our fallen friend was definitely inclined that way. Then Mr. Foster, himself, arose and became a battle casualty. These memories reminded me of one time we were on the road, and the train stopped at Wheeling, W. Va., for water or coal or something, and the brakeman said we would pause for 15 minutes. Sid Mercer and I went ashore in our shirt sleeves to absorb a glass of beer across the street and, when we got back, the station was empty. We rode a local day coach the rest of the way. I suppose we should have telegraphed John L. Lewis for accurate information before dismounting.

Now I am just about to take off by TWA for New York. I'll miss the Middle West. It is a friendly, warm place, although if some paper in the Big Town would take on this column, I could probably think of a few nice things to say about that burg.

Meyer Resigns As TCU Mentor

FORT WORTH, Tex., Dec. 4 (AP) L. R. "Dutch" Meyer, who believed passing was the perfect way to paydirt, today stepped down as football coach at Texas Christian University after 19 years of plotting razzle dazzle football.

The little man who delighted millions with a wide-open style of play off the single and double wings and a weird spread formation will be succeeded by his chief assistant, Othol "Abe" Martin.

Meyer, 54, who went from waterboy to head coach in a storybook career, will remain as athletic director.

Martin is a former TCU football star. He had an outstanding record as a high school coach and joined the TCU coaching staff in 1945. For the past two seasons he has been in charge of offense.

Meyer's record at TCU was 109 victories, 79 defeats and 13 ties.

In 19 years, Meyer produced three Southwest Conference champions, seven bowl teams and a host of stars. Perhaps the greatest were Sammy Baugh and Davey O'Brien, both passers.

Hancock Hunter Killed As Truck Crashes Bridge

A Hancock man and two Baltimore residents died yesterday as the result of highway accidents, giving Maryland three traffic victims within a few hours.

Homer Lee Scriever, 29, of RFD Hancock, was killed and another man seriously injured yesterday morning when a pickup truck crashed into the east end of Conocheague Creek Bridge on Route 40, about nine miles west of Hagerstown.

Reported in "fair" condition at Washington County Hospital is Charles F. Shank, 27, also of Hancock. Shank is owner of the truck.

Deputy Sheriff Leister Isanogle said preliminary investigation did not disclose who was driving the vehicle. He said both men were returning from a deer hunting trip.

Scriever was the second member of his family to be killed in a highway mishap this year. His 27-year-old brother, Reed Lehman Scriever, was killed last January 29 when his auto left the road and crashed into a filling station on a road between Hancock and Wardsbrg, Pa.

The Associated Press last night reported an 87-year-old widow, Mrs. Nannie Pawlings, Baltimore, died yesterday of injuries received when she was struck by an oil truck 24 hours earlier.

The third highway fatality, Edward Rippley, 81, of Baltimore, was found unconscious in Baltimore Wednesday night and died in hospital a short time later. Police said he was a victim of a hit-and-run vehicle.

The unidentified motorists who picked them up said they were carrying no weapons openly when he met them. They are believed to be carrying .38 caliber pistols, a .22 caliber rifle and a shotgun.

Nearly Caught Here

In Oakland, they stole the car of Joseph P. Sollars, former principal of Oakland Elementary School, and took off for Cumberland. They abandoned the car on Oak Street in South Cumberland, where it was spotted at 10:15 a. m. by a woman who called police when she noticed that the motor had been running for an hour.

Then Charles R. Johnson told Officer Robert R. Hammann he had chased two men away from his car when he caught them trying to steal it from in front of his Baltimore Pike home at about 7:30 a. m.

Johnson said he had overheard the men saying something about stealing his car, ditching it later and then taking another vehicle to continue their trip.

When Johnson returned with his rifle, the two men fled in a two-tone late-model car in which they had driven to Johnson's home. Police later established that it was the Sollars car.

Inside the Sollars car when police found it were a blanket stolen from another car in South Cumberland, and a length of rubber hose which police said was hacked from a gasoline pump at a local service station. Police said the hose apparently was used to siphon gas from other cars in the area.

Seen By Several Residents

State Trooper First Class William F. Baker, criminal investigator at LaVale Barracks, said several reports on the two fugitives began to come in soon after it became known that they had been in this area.

Baker said several people reported that two men had stolen large, farm-type milk cans in Garrett County.

Then came a report that two men roughly answering the descriptions of Toney and Derembeis were hitch-hiking along State Route 51 east of Cumberland. State Police sped to the scene, but found no one.

In West Virginia's Eastern Panhandle, State Police threw up roadblocks when two other hitch-hikers were seen along a highway, but that also proved to be a false lead.

Toney, Derembeis and White are the only three of the convicts still at large. All the others have been captured. The most recent arrest was that of Melvin R. Loveland, 31, of Pittsburgh, who was turned over to Morgantown, W. Va., policee when a cab driver became suspicious of him after hauling him around a large area of Southwestern Pennsylvania.

Description Of Fugitives

Both Loveland and James Milk, 25, who was captured earlier in Charleston, W. Va., refused to waive extradition back to Pennsylvania.

Descriptions of those still at large follow:

Toney—42 years old, five feet, 10 inches tall, weight 155, slim build, sallow complexion, brown hair and eyes, scar on right cheek.

Derembeis—41 years old, five feet three inches, weight 122, medium build, dark complexion, native of Greece, brown hair and eyes, tattoo, two dots on left forearm.

White—Negro, 31, five feet eight inches, weight 152, black hair, brown eyes, burn scar on back of left hand near wrist.

Girl Who Fled From Police Still Sought

Police yesterday were still looking for an elusive 17-year-old girl who slipped out of Police Headquarters Monday night while waiting to be questioned in connection with several shoplifting cases.

County Investigator Edwin R. Lilya and City Detective Lt. James E. Van tracked down several leads, but were unable to locate the girl. Officer John G. Powers, who saw the girl after she was arrested, was unable to identify any of three girls who later were questioned as the girl who ran away on Monday.

Officers said they believed the girl may have given a fictitious name when she was arrested. She told police her name was Janet Kidwell and that she resided in Midland, but officers believed she may reside in Cumberland.

More than $100,000 is found annually in letters that reach the United States dead letter office.

Western Maryland Tests Diesel Engine

The Western Maryland Railway, which traditionally has powered its trains with steam locomotives from Cumberland westward, has been testing three 1,500 horsepower Diesel units here this week.

Questioned after the large Diesel locomotive was observed pulling a train of empty coal cars westward from Cumberland, Joseph M. Miller, superintendent of the Elkins Division, said the locomotive was simply being tested here. It was brought here from the Hagerstown Division.

Miller stated that the railroad is purchasing a number of new Diesel locomotives but they are primarily for use in the Hagerstown Division. Some of them may be used in this division when not needed east of here, he remarked.

Nearly 50 per cent of all patients entering hospitals in the United States are admitted because of injury or violence.

Area Dentists Honor Members Released By Armed Forces

The Allegany-Garrett Dental Society this week honored two of its members who recently returned from tours of duty with the Armed Forces.

They are Dr. Norman T. Barger, who served in the Navy in the Mediterranean and Caspian Sea area, and Dr. Warren W. Cook, who was with the Army in Korea.

Both dentists termed the quality of dental work provided for the Armed Forces as excellent in spite of the difficulties encountered in some areas.

Dr. Cook, who was stationed in Japan for a time, said the Japanese dentists are good operators and have good equipment which has been copied from American models.

Glazed tiles came into general use in Europe during the second half of the 12th century.

Hancock Hunter Killed As Truck Crashes Bridge

A Hancock man and two Baltimore residents died yesterday as the result of highway accidents, giving Maryland three traffic victims within a few hours.

Homer Lee Scriever, 29, of RFD Hancock, was killed and another an seriously injured yesterday morning when a pickup truck crashed into the east end of Conocheague Creek Bridge on Route 0, about nine miles west of Hagerstown.

Reported in "fair" condition at Washington County Hospital is Charles F. Shank, 27, also of Hancock. Shank is owner of the truck.

Deputy Sheriff Leister Isanogle said preliminary investigation did not disclose who was driving the vehicle. He said both men were returning from a deer hunting trip.

Scriever was the second member of his family to be killed in a highway mishap this year. His 27-year-old brother, Reed Lehman Scriever, was killed last January 29 when his auto left the road and crashed into a filling station on a road between Hancock and Wardsburg, Pa.

The Associated Press last night reported an 87-year-old widow, Mrs. Nannie Pawlings, Baltimore, died yesterday of injuries received when she was struck by an oil truck 24 hours earlier.

The third highway fatality, Edward Rippley, 81, of Baltimore, was found unconscious in Baltimore Wednesday night and died in a hospital a short time later. Police said he was a victim of a hit-and-run vehicle.

The unidentified motorists who picked them up said they were carrying no weapons openly when he met them. They are believed to be carrying .38 caliber pistols, a .22 caliber rifle and a shotgun.

Nearly Caught Here

In Oakland, they stole the car of Joseph P. Sollars, former principal of Oakland Elementary School, and took off for Cumberland. They abandoned the car on Oak Street in South Cumberland, where it was spotted at 10:15 a. m. by a woman who called police when she noticed that the motor had been running for an hour.

Then Charles R. Johnson told Officer Robert R. Hammann he had chased two men away from his car when he caught them trying to steal it from in front of his Baltimore Pike home at about 7:30 a. m.

Johnson said he had overheard the men saying something about stealing his car, ditching it later and then taking another vehicle to continue their trip.

When Johnson returned with his rifle, the two men fled in a two-tone late-model car in which they had driven to Johnson's home. Police later established that it was the Sollars car.

Inside the Sollars car when police found it were a blanket stolen from another car in South Cumberland, and a length of rubber hose which police said was hacked from a gasoline pump at a local service station. Police said the hose apparently was used to siphon gas from other cars in the area.

Seen By Several Residents

State Trooper First Class William F. Baker, criminal investigator at LaVale Barracks, said several reports on the two fugitives began to come in soon after it became known that they had been in this area.

Baker said several people reported that two men had stolen large, farm-type milk cans in Garrett County.

Then came a report that two men roughly answering the descriptions of Toney and Derembeis were hitch-hiking along State Route 51 east of Cumberland. State Police sped to the scene, but found no one.

In West Virginia's Eastern Panhandle, State Police threw up roadblocks when two other hitchhikers were seen along a highway, but that also proved to be a false lead.

Toney, Derembeis and White are the only three of the convicts still at large. All the others have been captured. The most recent arrest was that of Melvin R. Loveland, 31, of Pittsburgh, who was turned over to Morgantown, W. Va., policee when a cab driver became suspicious of him after hauling him around a large area of Southwestern Pennsylvania.

Description Of Fugitives

Both Loveland and James Milk, 25, who was captured earlier in Charleston, W. Va., refused to waive extradition back to Pennsylvania.

Descriptions of those still at large follow:

American Prosperity Causes Anti-U. S. Feeling In England

This is the fourth in a series of articles giving a full, factual report on the problem of anti-Americanism in Britain, particularly as regards GIs stationed there.

By ROBERT A. WIENER
INS Staff Correspondent

LONDON (INS) — British and American observers report that U.S. prosperity is one of the causes of anti-American feeling in Britain.

The British are a proud people.

They dominated the world for centuries through their empire. Their navy was the world's biggest. They controlled vast supplies of the world's raw materials, manufactured the goods for many non-industrial countries and carried the bulk of the world's trade in British ships.

They no longer enjoy such a position. They have faced a continuous economic crisis since the end of World War II. They are struggling from month to month with the problem of exporting more and more to enable them to live. There are tight domestic controls on all phases of the economy and enormous income taxes and other taxes.

They have seen the United States and even former enemy countries prosper more than they have in the postwar world.

They are beholden to the United States for billions of dollars worth of economic and military aid. They are grateful for that aid but it hurts their pride to have to be dependent on it.

They have seen some Americans come to England flush with money, owning big automobiles, wearing smart new clothes, possessing the latest gadgets and bubbling over with sales of the abundance of the American way of life.

Their resentment is increased by signs in English shops reading "for overseas visitors only," which enables Americans to buy goods with dollars and take them free of the stiff purchase tax which every Englishman must pay.

Sometimes Americans talk too loudly about the material benefits to be had in the United States. Sometimes they criticize the British for being slow to accept change, or for having such old-fashioned plumbing.

But most American civilians and servicemen create a good impression and are well-liked by the British. They're friendly but not overly so. They're generous, and it has had its effect.

Harry Brown, a taxi-driver in Cambridge, commented:

"I've seen and met Americans both during the war and since, and most of them would take the shirt off their back and give it to you if you asked for it."

American foreign and economic policies which differ from the British viewpoint do much to create bad feeling towards the United States.

The high point in anti-American feeling came early in the Korean War when Gen. Douglas MacArthur advocated bombing Chinese Manchurian bases.

More recently, when American planes bombed the Yalu River power plants, the anti-American feeling asserted itself with little restraint. The fear in Britain was that such action could have spread the Korean War.

The Communists are quick to exploit these differences for all they are worth. In the Daily Worker, Communist newspaper, the constant theme is that the United States is leading Britain down the road to war and ruin.

But the rest of the British press also is involved. Foreign policy stands by the United States which run counter to British thinking bring big headlines and editorial attacks upon America.

In British government circles there is a fear that the United States may pursue a course of policy and bring on a large scale shooting war by some rash action.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill in his public speeches frequently asserts the necessity of the United States and Birtain standing together, but strong criticism of American policies is not uncommon on lower government levels.

Anti-British or isolationist speeches in the United States also have their effect. A Foreign Office spokesman remarked:

"The thing that has constantly disturbed Anglo-American relations is that the lunatic fringe in America talks so loud."

When Americans complain about high taxes they pay to finance European aid, the British become irritated. They assert that their tax burden has been far greater than that of the United States since before the war.

They seldom forget to point out that Britain fought World War II alone through the dark days of 1940-41 at great cost while, the way they look at it, "big profits" were being made in the United States.

One government official said Anglo-American relations will remain good "if Britain doesn't get the impression the United States is trying to improve its position in the world at Britain's expense."

"Trade not aid" is the current theme in government circles as the way for America to help Britain's economy and improve relations. The British say the only way to increase trade is for the United States to cut its tariffs.

Lady Shawcross, wife of Sir Hartley Shawcross, Labor member of Parliament, reflected prevailing opinion when she said:

"We do not wish or intend to live as America's poor relations aided by charity and dependent in policy.

"The American policy of Marshall aid and mutual security has given Europe and ourselves immense help. But it is certainly not a system we want or expect to see as a permanent feature of European life."

Britain is now waiting eagerly to see what effect on Anglo-American problems and relations the new administration of General Eisenhower will have.

Court Turns Down Petition For Ban On Gas Space Heat

A petition filed by the Cumberland & Allegheny Gas Company, in protest to the West Virginia Public Service Commission's cancellation of certain restrictions on the use of natural gas for space heating, has been turned down by the Supreme Court at Charleston.

The court voted four-to-one in refusing to suspend and review a PSC order of last July 31.

Two joint petitions were filed with the appellate court, one by C&A and the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company, and the other by United Fuel Gas Company and Amere Gas Utilities Company. All four firms are subsidiaries of the Columbia Gas System.

The petitions, essentially the same, contended the PSC acted in an unreasonable and arbitrary manner by entering its order and did so "without taking any evidence to support its action."

In August 1951 the PSC limited the use of gas generally but there were no restrictions on space heating for new residential structures. Last April, the Columbia subsidiaries jointly petitioned the commission to extend the restrictions.

A month later, the PSC entered its final order because, it said, such restrictions had been removed in most of the states adjoining West Virginia. The gas companies asked that the order be set aside and the commission refused to do so. The firms appealed to the court.

The gas companies also maintained:

1. The PSC lifted the restrictions "in the face of a critical shortage of gas anticipated for the coming winter," and the order will aggravate seriously such a shortage.

2. Without notice of hearing, the order violates the due process clause of the West Virginia and U. S. constitutions.

3. The commission failed to give consideration to the Defense Production Act of 1950 and failed to perform the duty imposed by that act.

Their resentment is increased by signs in English shops reading "for overseas visitors only," which enables Americans to buy goods with dollars and take them free of the stiff purchase tax which every Englishman must pay.

Sometimes Americans talk too loudly about the material benefits to be had in the United States. Sometimes they criticize the British for being slow to accept change, or for having such old-fashioned plumbing.

But most American civilians and servicemen create a good impression and are well-liked by the British. They're friendly but not overly so. They're generous, and it has had its effect.

Harry Brown, a taxi-driver in Cambridge, commented:

"I've seen and met Americans both during the war and since, and most of them would take the shirt off their back and give it to you if you asked for it."

American foreign and economic policies which differ from the British viewpoint do much to create bad feeling towards the United States.

The high point in anti-American feeling came early in the Korean War when Gen. Douglas MacArthur advocated bombing Chinese Manchurian bases.

More recently, when American planes bombed the Yalu River power plants, the anti-American feeling asserted itself with little restraint. The fear in Britain was that such action could have spread the Korean War.

The Communists are quick to exploit these differences for all they are worth. In the Daily Worker, Communist newspaper, the constant theme is that the United States is leading Britain down the road to war and ruin.

But the rest of the British press also is involved. Foreign policy stands by the United States which run counter to British thinking bring big headlines and editorial attacks upon America.

In British government circles there is a fear that the United States may pursue a course of policy and bring on a large scale shooting war by some rash action.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill in his public speeches frequently asserts the necessity of the United States and Birtain standing together, but strong criticism of American policies is not uncommon on lower government levels.

Anti-British or isolationist speeches in the United States also have their effect. A Foreign Office spokesman remarked:

"The thing that has constantly disturbed Anglo-American relations is that the lunatic fringe in America talks so loud."

When Americans complain about high taxes they pay to finance European aid, the British become irritated. They assert that their tax burden has been far greater than that of the United States since before the war.

They seldom forget to point out that Britain fought World War II alone through the dark days of 1940-41 at great cost while, the way they look at it, "big profits" were being made in the United States.

One government official said Anglo-American relations will remain good "if Britain doesn't get the impression the United States is trying to improve its position in the world at Britain's expense."

"Trade not aid" is the current theme in government circles as the way for America to help Britain's economy and improve relations. The British say the only way to increase trade is for the United States to cut its tariffs.

Lady Shawcross, wife of Sir Hartley Shawcross, Labor member of Parliament, reflected prevailing opinion when she said:

"We do not wish or intend to live as America's poor relations aided by charity and dependent in policy.

"The American policy of Marshall aid and mutual security has given Europe and ourselves immense help. But it is certainly not a system we want or expect to see as a permanent feature of European life."

Britain is now waiting eagerly to see what effect on Anglo-American problems and relations the new administration of General Eisenhower will have.

Court Turns Down Petition For Ban On Gas Space Heat

A petition filed by the Cumberland & Allegheny Gas Company, in protest to the West Virginia Public Service Commission's cancellation of certain restrictions on the use of natural gas for space heating, has been turned down by the Supreme Court at Charleston.

The court voted four-to-one in refusing to suspend and review a PSC order of last July 31.

Two joint petitions were filed with the appellate court, one by C&A and the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company, and the other by United Fuel Gas Company and Amere Gas Utilities Company. All four firms are subsidiaries of the Columbia Gas System.

The petitions, essentially the same, contended the PSC acted in an unreasonable and arbitrary manner by entering its order and did so "without taking any evidence to support its action."

In August 1951 the PSC limited the use of gas generally but there were no restrictions on space heating for new residential structures. Last April, the Columbia subsidiaries jointly petitioned the commission to extend the restrictions.

A month later, the PSC entered its final order because, it said, such restrictions had been removed in most of the states adjoining West Virginia. The gas companies asked that the order be set aside and the commission refused to do so. The firms appealed to the court.

The gas companies also maintained:

1. The PSC lifted the restrictions "in the face of a critical shortage of gas anticipated for the coming winter," and the order will aggravate seriously such a shortage.

2. Without notice of hearing, the order violates the due process clause of the West Virginia and U. S. constitutions.

3. The commission failed to give consideration to the Defense Production Act of 1950 and failed to perform the duty imposed by that act.

SRC Submits $42,000,000 Budget For Road Projects

The State Roads Commission has submitted a $42,000,000 budget proposal to Governor McKeldin and estimated about $15,000,000 would be available for construction from regular highway income during the fiscal year starting July 1.

Construction expenditures will be supplemented during the period by proceeds from a $25,000,000 bond issue in late spring.

Included in the $42,000,000 total is nearly $6,000,000 in Federal aid funds.

The rest of anticipated revenues comes from state sources. Motor vehicle fees, gasoline taxes and titling taxes are the principal ones.

Debt service on outstanding highway bonds will require $8,099,288.

Other major expenditure allocations, besides $15,057,929 to state-system construction, include:

State maintenance: $7,083,037.

County and municipal construction and maintenance: $9,538,224.

Federal urban aid—$2,277,541.

The state maintenance total—raised from $5,083,037 to $7,083,037 by transfer of $2,000,000 from the construction fund as authorized by the legislature — provides for expenditure of $684,414 for acquisition of capital properties—$200,000 for truck weight enforcement, $30,000 for Ocean City beach protection and $60,000 for operation of the Patuxent River toll bridge.

Income from that bridge was estimated at $60,000. The allocation for its operation and maintenance includes $15,000 for a painting reserve or transfer toward paying off its original cost. The structure was built with highway bonds.

The 12 counties that do their own highway work and municipalities in all counties will receive $5,750,347 for construction and maintenance from shared gasoline and motor vehicle revenues.

SRC Submits $42,000,000 Budget For Road Projects

The State Roads Commission has submitted a $42,000,000 budget proposal to Governor McKeldin and estimated about $15,000,000 would be available for construction from regular highway income during the fiscal year starting July 1.

Construction expenditures will be supplemented during the period by proceeds from a $25,000,000 bond issue in late spring.

Included in the $42,000,000 total is nearly $6,000,000 in Federal aid funds.

The rest of anticipated revenues comes from state sources. Motor vehicle fees, gasoline taxes and titling taxes are the principal ones.

Debt service on outstanding highway bonds will require $8,099,288.

Other major expenditure allocations, besides $15,057,929 to state-system construction, include:

State maintenance: $7,083,037.

County and municipal construction and maintenance: $9,538,224.

Federal urban aid—$2,277,541.

The state maintenance total—raised from $5,083,037 to $7,083,037 by transfer of $2,000,000 from the construction fund as authorized by the legislature — provides for expenditure of $684,414 for acquisition of capital properties—$200,000 for truck weight enforcement, $30,000 for Ocean City beach protection and $60,000 for operation of the Patuxent River toll bridge.

Income from that bridge was estimated at $60,000. The allocation for its operation and maintenance includes $15,000 for a painting reserve or transfer toward paying off its original cost. The structure was built with highway bonds.

The 12 counties that do their own highway work and municipalities in all counties will receive $5,750,347 for construction and maintenance from shared gasoline and motor vehicle revenues.

Facelift Costing $16,000,000 Is Planned For Niagara Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. — (AP) — Visitors to Niagara Falls are due for some surprises in the next few years.

They may find the scenic splendor of the Canadian Falls somewhat distorted, but it's only temporary. It's part of a plan evolved by the International Joint Commission to keep the grandeur of the Horseshoe Falls intact in future years when more water is drawn off upstream for hydro development.

The construction plan calls for a dam blocking off portions of the brink so crews can work on the river bed above the falls. They will deepen certain sections by excavation, to produce an even distribution of water all around the horseshoe, providing a beautiful, unbroken curtain of falling water.

Unfortunately for the honeymooners and tourists who flock to the historic holiday center each year, this work can only be done during the summer months. Until it's completed the Canadian Falls just won't look the same.

The job, if it gets the go-ahead from the Canadian and U. S. governments, will be started in 1953. It will take four years to finish at an estimated cost of 16 million dollars, shared equally by the two countries.

No work will be done on the American side of the falls. A proposed control dam 1,550 feet long about a mile upstream will guarantee an even flow over the U. S. side.

In the end, sightseers will get a better look at the mighty cataract. The change will make possible new vantage points on each tip of the horseshoe, with an unobstructed view.

Most of the research on water conditions on the Niagara was done on an ingenious model in a special building at Islington, a Toronto suburb. The model took two years to build and represents exactly every detail of the falls and the river for about two miles upstream. The scale is one inch to 250 feet.

To obtain data on the contour of the river bottom engineers developed novel solutions for problems which had no precedent.

It was impossible to trace the river bottom near the falls by the conventional methods so they used a helicopter, which hovered over the river and lowered a line with a marker attached. Surveyors on shore sighted their transits on the marker. Later searchlights were used for night work. The light illuminated the water and the depths of the beam were measured by transit. Thousands of readings were taken in this manner.

It has been estimated that the United States will reach a population of 200 million well before the end of this century.

Maryland Adopts New Regulations For Ice Cream

New regulations of the Maryland State Board of Health governing the quality of milk used in frozen foods sold in this state will go into effect next July 1.

Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, said the purpose of the new regulation is to set a single standard of purity for both fluid and frozen milk products.

It requires ice cream manufacturers to use the same high quality milk in ice cream as is used for drinking purposes, according to Dr. R. H. Riley, chairman of the state board.

Health Board officials said that as far as is known, all Maryland manufacturers are already abiding by the standard they helped to formulate.

The principal point of contention in the new regulation requires that all milk used in the manufacture of ice cream outside Maryland but for sale in this state must come from farms whose sanitation standards are at least equal to the high standards already enforced in Maryland.

The July 1, 1953, effective date, officials said, gives out-of-state farmers seven months to raise sanitation standards up to the Maryland levels.

Inspections will be made next June, officials said, to determine if the farmers meet the health requirements set by the new state regulation.

Serve Tasty Spareribs In Variety Of Ways

BARBECUED SPARERIBS — They taste as good as they look — barbecued spareribs cooked to mellow tenderness in a matter of minutes! The pressure cooker does the job in 15 minutes. Serve the ribs with buttered lima beans and a molded vegetable salad.

"Divide and conquer" is the answer to those budget problems. If you'll break down your food budget into several classifications —meat, milk and dairy products, fruits and vegetables—you'll find that you can easily save pennies in each category. For instance, by choosing the less expensive cuts of meat and the vegetables and friuts which are in season, you can quickly fatten your piggy bank.

In the meat line this fall, you'll want to watch for good buys in pork, for pork supplies are on the increase.

You may find your meat man featuring popular spareribs these days. Here's a recipe for preparing barbecued spareribs speedily in the pressure cooker—they cook to mellow tenderness in only 15 minutes and require very little advance preparation.

Barbecued Spareribs

- 2 sides spareribs
- Salt, pepper, paprika
- 2 tablespoons lard
- 1 large onion
- ¼ cup catsup
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- ¼ teaspoon chili powder
- ¼ teaspoon celery seed

Have spareribs cut into serving pieces; sprinkle with salt, pepper and paprika. Melt lard in pressure cooker and in it brown spareribs a few at a time until all are well browned. Slice onion; mix catsup with rest of ingredients. Put half the spareribs in the pressure cooker; cover with half the sliced onions and half the barbecue sauce. Add rest of spareribs, onions and sauce. Place cover on pressure cooker and cook for 15 minutes at 15 pounds pressure. Reduce pressure slowly according to directions for your cooker.

Here's a spareribs and vegetable one-dish meal—a variation of the popular "boiled dinner."

Baked Spareribs With Vegetables

- 2 sides spareribs
- 1 teaspoon onion salt
- 1 teaspoon celery salt
- ½ teaspoon garlic salt
- 1 teaspoon sage
- ½ teaspoon marjoram
- Salt, pepper
- 4 medium potatoes
- 8 small carrots
- 4 medium onions

Have meat man cut spareribs into serving pieces. Mix seasonings and rub into both sides of meat; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place ribs under the broiler and brown thoroughly on both sides. Place in roasting pan. Add 1 cup water, cover and bake at 350° F. for 1 hour. Cut potatoes and onion in half and arrange with whole carrots around meat. Sprinkle vegetables with salt and pepper. Cover and bake 1 hour or until vegetables and meat are tender. Turn vegetables during baking and add more water as needed. Pork 'n' Applesauce Variation

Nothing better complements the rich flavor of pork than applesauce. An interesting variation of this good pork companion is applesauce nippily flavored with horseradish. It's tasty with pork chops, pork steaks and roasts.

Horseradish Applesauce

- 1 cup applesauce
- ¾ teaspoon horseradish

A Favorite With The Men

A favorite way of serving pork hocks is with sauerkraut. Here's a new twist for that well-known twosome. The kraut is seasoned with caraway seed and cooked with diced potatoes and apples.

Pork Hock-Sauerkraut Special

- 4 pork hocks
- 2 teaspoons salt (omit if hocks are smoked)
- 1 large can sauerkraut (3½ cups)
- 2 medium potatoes, cubed
- 1 tart apple, diced
- 2 teaspoons caraway seed
- ¼ cup brown sugar

Cover hocks with water, add salt and simmer, covered, until tender, about 2 hours. Remove meat and skim fat from surface of stock. Pour off all but 1½ cups of stock, add remaining ingredients and mix well. Top with hocks. Cover and cook 30 minutes. 4 servings.

Try This Dish When Company Comes

Whether it's called the company shelf, the emergency shelf, or whatever, you probably have a corner of one kitchen cupboard where you keep the "makings" of a meal.

Here's a main dish that you can make from just three cans on your emergency shelf; the other ingredients are common to most kitchen cupboards. Keep the recipe in the same place, and you'll be prepared for unexpected guests.

Luncheon Meat Patties

- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ¼ cup molasses
- 3 tablespoons pineapple juice or water
- 6 slices canned pineapple
- 1 12-ounce can luncheon meat
- ¾ cup corn flakes or whole wheat flakes, crushed
- 2 tablespoons prepared mustard
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 2 tablespoons milk
- 1 egg, beaten
- 6 whole cloves
- 1 18-ounce can sweet potatoes

Put butter, molasses, and pineapple juice in 8x12x2-inch pan and place in hot oven (400°F.) until very hot. Meanwhile, put luncheon meat through food chopper, using medium blade. Mix with corn flakes, mustard. Worcestershire sauce, milk, and egg. Shape into 6 patties and insert a clove on top of each patty. Arrange pineapple slices in pan of hot liquid and place a meat patty on top of each. Place sweet potatoes around pineapple and baste with the hot liquid. Return to oven and bake 40 to 50 minutes, basting 3 or 4 times.

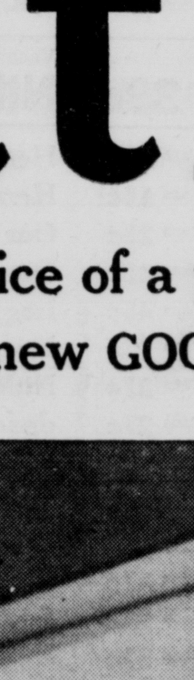

Yield: 6 servings.

Electric Cash Register, Adding Machine FOR SALE

Fathers!

We bet you the price of a pound that your wife can't tell the difference between the new GOOD LUCK margarine and "you-know-what"

LEAVE US FACE IT. We know dozens of women who wouldn't put margarine on their tables for all the tea in China.

We don't blame these people, not one bit. As a matter of fact, our own wife used to be the same way. Her prejudice against margarine dated back to her childhood, when she was given old-fashioned oleo. It was made of beef-fat—and tasted perfectly awful.

Last week she tasted our new golden GOOD LUCK. To tell you the truth she had to taste it, because we work for Lever Brothers and our wife knows which side her bread is margarined on. She was flabbergasted.

"Here," she said, "is something to be proud of. I would never have known that it was margarine. This stuff is in a class by itself. From now on, anyone who pays eighty cents a pound just isn't smart."

And so forth, for half an hour.

That night we gave a party, and we got a notion to play an innocent trick on our guests. So we served little pats of GOOD LUCK with the hot rolls, and never let on that it was margarine.

After dinner we let the cat out of the bag. Nobody could believe that they had been eating margarine. They had been taken in, completely and absolutely, every man jack of them. And they loved it! We made eight converts to GOOD LUCK that night.

Your Money Back

We know we can convert your wife, too, so we make this sporting offer: Smuggle a pound of GOOD LUCK into your house. Then put a pat of GOOD LUCK on her hot toast at breakfast tomorrow morning. Don't say a word. Just watch her out of the corner of your eye.

If your wife guesses that GOOD LUCK is margarine, we will repay you what you paid your grocer, plus postage. And no questions asked.

You Can't Tell the Difference

The inside story behind this new GOOD LUCK is absolutely fascinating.

We set out to produce a margarine which could hold its own with "you-know-what". A margarine which the most persnickety people would be happy to serve on their tables. A margarine which would be "indistinguishable".

It took us fourteen years of secret research to do this trick. But we did it.

The actual flavor of GOOD LUCK was achieved by a secret Lever process combined with a remarkable technique discovered at a famous State College of Agriculture.

Is GOOD LUCK as Nourishing as "You-Know-What"?

The latest medical evidence proves that the new GOOD LUCK is, if anything more nourishing than "you-know-what".

For example, GOOD LUCK gives you a minimum of 15,000 U.S.P. units of Vitamin A in every golden pound—more than you get in thirty glasses of Grade A milk!

What's more, GOOD LUCK gives you these vitamins all the year round—not just in summer, when the grass happens to be green in the pastures.

Strong Boys—and Pretty Girls

Give your boys plenty of GOOD LUCK, and it will help make them big and strong. Give it to your girls, and it will actually help them have pretty complexions—this is a scientific fact.

In addition to fortifying GOOD LUCK with Vitamin A, we also add thousands of gallons of fat-free milk, which contains the valuable solids and minerals. And nearly all of the other ingredients in GOOD LUCK come from crops grown on American farms.

Save Up to 50¢ a Pound

You might expect to pay a fancy price for this glorious new table margarine, but the amazing fact is that GOOD LUCK costs no more than old-fashioned oleo!

What's more, its quality and flavor are unconditionally guaranteed. If you are not entirely satisfied, mail the GOOD LUCK package to Lever Brothers Company, New York 22, N.Y., and your purchase price plus postage will be returned at once.

So treat your family to the best, and still save as much as 50¢ a pound—enough to buy two extra quarts of milk!

In the words of our wife, be smart—get GOOD LUCK.

And because we're so anxious to have you try new golden GOOD LUCK for yourself, we make this unusual offer: Tear out the valuable coupon below, and save an additional 10¢ on your first pound of GOOD LUCK. Better do it today!

Lever Brothers Company, 390 Park Ave., N.Y.

Save 10¢! Tear out this coupon!

Serve Tasty Spareribs In Variety Of Ways

BARBECUED SPARERIBS — They taste as good as they look — barbecued spareribs cooked to mellow tenderness in a matter of minutes! The pressure cooker does the job in 15 minutes. Serve the ribs with buttered lima beans and a molded vegetable salad.

"Divide and conquer" is the answer to those budget problems. If you'll break down your food budget into several classifications —meat, milk and dairy products, fruits and vegetables—you'll find that you can easily save pennies in each category. For instance, by choosing the less expensive cuts of meat and the vegetables and friuts which are in season, you can quickly fatten your piggy bank.

In the meat line this fall, you'll want to watch for good buys in pork, for pork supplies are on the increase.

You may find your meat man featuring popular spareribs these days. Here's a recipe for preparing barbecued spareribs speedily in the pressure cooker—they cook to mellow tenderness in only 15 minutes and require very little advance preparation.

Barbecued Spareribs

2 sides spareribs
Salt, pepper, paprika
2 tablespoons lard
1 large onion
¼ cup catsup
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ teaspoon chili powder
¼ teaspoon celery seed

Have spareribs cut into serving pieces; sprinkle with salt, pepper and paprika. Melt lard in pressure cooker and in it brown spareribs a few at a time until all are well browned. Slice onion; mix catsup with rest of ingredients. Put half the spareribs in the pressure cooker; cover with half the sliced onions and half the barbecue sauce. Add rest of spareribs, onions and sauce. Place cover on pressure cooker and cook for 15 minutes at 15 pounds pressure. Reduce pressure slowly according to directions for your cooker.

Here's a spareribs and vegetable one-dish meal—a variation of the popular "boiled dinner."

Baked Spareribs With Vegetables

2 sides spareribs
1 teaspoon onion salt
1 teaspoon celery salt
½ teaspoon garlic salt
1 teaspoon sage
½ teaspoon marjoram
Salt, pepper
4 medium potatoes
8 small carrots
4 medium onions

Have meat man cut spareribs into serving pieces. Mix seasonings and rub into both sides of meat; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place ribs under the broiler and brown thoroughly on both sides. Place in roasting pan. Add 1 cup water, cover and bake at 350° F. for 1 hour. Cut potatoes and onion in half and arrange with whole carrots around meat. Sprinkle vegetables with salt and pepper. Cover and bake 1 hour or until vegetables and meat are tender. Turn vegetables during baking and add more water as needed. After removing meat and vegetables, thicken remaining stock with a flour and water paste, if desired, and serve over vegetables. 4 servings.

Old Standby, Ribs With Kraut

Baked Spareribs with Sauerkraut: Have two sides spareribs cut into serving pieces. Lay half in a large roasting pan and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Spread with a mixture of 1 large can sauerkraut, 1 medium onion, chopped, 2 tart apples, chopped, 6 whole cloves, 1 teaspoon caraway seed and ¼ cup brown sugar. Top with remaining spareribs and sprinkle with salt, pepper and paprika. Add a little water if kraut is dry. Bake, covered, at 325° F. for one hour, adding more water as needed. Uncover and bake 30 minutes, or until tender.

Pork 'n' Applesauce Variation

Nothing better complements the rich flavor of pork than applesauce. An interesting variation of this good pork companion is applesauce nippily flavored with horseradish. It's tasty with pork chops, pork steaks and roasts.

Cover hocks with water, add salt and simmer, covered, until tender, about 2 hours. Remove meat and skim fat from surface of stock. Pour off all but 1½ cups of stock, add remaining ingredients and mix well. Top with hocks. Cover and cook 30 minutes. 4 servings.

Surprise Inside These Tender Banana Muffins

Need a touch to take your meal out of the "plain" class? A heaping basket of hot bread can often be the answer. Banana Surprise Muffins are one good example. The surprise? It's the strawberry jam your family finds when they break open these muffins, made with lard to be at their tender best.

Banana Surprise Muffins

1¾ cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon baking soda
¾ teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
1 egg, well beaten
⅓ cup melted lard
1 cup mashed ripe bananas
Strawberry jam

Sift together flour, baking powder, soda, salt and sugar into mixing bowl. Mix together egg, lard and bananas. Add to dry ingredients, mixing only enough to dampen all flour. Turn into well-greased small muffin pans. Drop about a teaspoonful of jam on top of each muffin. Bake in a moderately hot oven (400° F.) for about 20 minutes. 16 small muffins.

Combine Chicken Cranberries In Muffins

Marvelous chicken-cranberry muffins are these, made with condensed cream of chicken soup as the liquid: First chop 1 cup fresh cranberries and mix with ½ cup sugar. Then in mixing bowl sift together 2 cups flour, 1 tablespoon baking powder, 1 tablespoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt; make a well in center. Combine 1 can cream of chicken soup with 1 egg (beaten) and ¼ cup melted shortening; add to dry ingredients, stirring just until mixed. Stir cranberries into batter. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full. Bake in a hot oven (400°F.) about 20 minutes or until done. Makes 12 muffins.

Spaghetti Makes Short-Order Special

Need a speedy meal during the holiday season? You'll like ¼ pound of browned ground beef frizzled with 1 small minced onion, then mixed with 1 can of spaghetti in tomato sauce with cheese. Use the 15-½ ounce can of spaghetti and there are 4 portions. Serve piping hot.

Baby Green Limas Have Versatility

If you are still numbered among those who have limited storage space for frozen foods, then it is quite likely that you give more than casual attention to the choice of frozen vegetables and fruits that you wish to keep on hand.

For sheer goodness and almost unlimited versatility frozen baby green lima beans should take a top spot on your shopping list. With only the most meager of seasoning, the usual butter, pepper and salt, baby limas are always a well appreciated side dish vegetable. But what enormous possibilities they have when combined with a little imagination.

Best of all, for the thrifty housewife (and who isn't these days) it's good to know that when you take your packages of baby green limas from your freezer, you know that every "smidgen" of the vegetable will find its way to the table. No waste in pods, imperfect beans or other inedible portions. All you paid for can be eaten.

For something different at luncheon or those "little suppers," try these easy-to-prepare recipes for Baby Green Limas.

Baby Green Lima Bean Mushroom Casserole

Heat 1 can condensed mushroom soup. Add 1 package of defrosted green baby lima beans. Bring to a boil. Add 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce (optional), salt and pepper to taste. Pour into baking dish. Cover with buttered crumbs or crushed potato chips. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F) for 20 to 25 minutes. Serves 4 to 5.

When Napoleon dined the butler was ready with extras of everything because the emperor, when in a rage, would frequently throw dishes about.

Corn Bread Circles Pork To Score An Easy "Ringer"

Left-over pork is sweet meat when combined in its own gravy with the full-bodied flavor of corn meal. And there is an easy way to do it so that corn bread, meat and gravy can be served together as the main dish of a tasty meal.

The framework of this nourishing dinner is the corn bread, baked in a ring mold. While the bread is baking, heat the meat in its gravy, and you have a quick meal for a washday Monday or any other particularly busy day of the week.

Corn bread goes well with gravy, too, for it does not quickly become soggy. In addition, it tends to hold the heat in the meat and gravy, keeping each serving piping hot until it reaches the dinner plate.

Pork and gravy in a corn bread ring is a simple way to use left-over meat. Try it soon and score a "ringer" at the table.

Pork And Gravy In Corn Bread Ring

- 1½ cups corn meal
- ⅓ cup sifted flour
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- 2 eggs, beaten slightly
- 1¼ cups melted butter or margarine
- 3 cups diced left-over roast pork
- 1½ cups gravy

(If self-rising corn meal and flour are used, omit salt and baking powder.)

Mix and sift together the dry ingredients. Combine beaten eggs, milk, and melted butter or margarine, which has been cooled. Pour liquid over dry ingredients, mixing only until moistened. Pour into a well-greased 9-inch ring mold and bake in a 400 degrees F. oven until it shrinks from the sides of the mold (about 25 minutes). Unmold and fill with pork and gravy which have been thoroughly heated together. Yield: 6 servings.

Sweet And Sour Cabbage

- 6 cups shredded green or red cabbage
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon celery salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- ⅓ cup vinegar
- ½ cup water
- ½ cup finely diced onion

Cook cabbage in covered saucepan in a small amount of rapidly boiling, salted water until tender, about 5 to 6 minutes. Drain; keep hot. Melt butter; stir in flour, sugar, seasonings, vinegar, and water. Cook over low heat until smooth and thickened, stirring constantly. Add sauce and minced onion to hot cabbage, blending lightly with fork. Heat through. Serves 6.

Tuna Puffs

4 tablespoons butter; ½ pound sliced mushrooms; 4 tablespoons flour; 1 teaspoon salt; Few grains cayenne; 1½ cups milk; 4 eggs, separated; 1 cup grated American cheese; 1 7-ounce can flaked tuna 2 cups bread crumbs.

Melt butter in saucepan, add mushrooms, cover and cook 5 minutes over low heat, stirring occasionally. Remove mushrooms. Add flour and seasonings to butter left in pan, blend. Gradually add milk, while stirring; cook over low heat until smooth and thickened, stirring constantly. Beat egg yolks slightly; add some hot sauce and blend; return to remaining sauce and cook 2 minutes longer. Fold in grated cheese. Remove from heat. Add drained, flaked tuna, and bread crumbs, mix thoroughly and cool. Beat egg whites until stiff. Fold in fish mixture. Pour into 6 large, buttered custard cups or individual casseroles. Bake in a slow oven, 325°F., 45 minutes or until firm. For a large casserole, bake 1¼ hours. Serve with lemon wedges. Serves 6.

Plums With Ham

Blue plums serve with a ham slice for a tempting combination. Purchase a ham slice that's cut about 1 inch thick. Place it in a shallow baking pan and sprinkle with brown sugar. Pour 1-3 cup of canned blue plum juice over the meat and bake for 1 hour in a 300°F. oven. Turn the slice once during this period. At the end of one hour, arrange plums over the top of the ham slice and return to the oven for an additional 15 minutes.

When tea was introduced in England it was regarded as a stronger beverage than beer or ale.

Hamburger History

Hamburgers cooked as we know them today started their rise to fame back in 1904 at the St. Louis World's Fair.

Spaniards capture pigeons for the table by placing nets in mountain passes during the birds' migrations.

Cookies Are Fit For A Party

You can go high-hat in your cooky baking and still keep the effort involved to a minimum. These two party-time cookies prove the point.

The Tea Time Dainties are perfect for your ladies' afternoon gathering. Their peanut butter flavor is especially good combined with the dates, and the cereal flakes give a crispness inside and out.

Crispettes are a double-layered bar cooky. The chewy top layer is made with oven-popped rice cereal, chopped walnuts, and coconut.

Tea Time Dainties

½ cup peanut butter; ¾ cup sifted confectioners' sugar; ½ cup finely cut dates; ⅛ teaspoon salt; 1 teaspoon vanilla; 2 egg whites, unbeaten; 2 cups corn flakes or whole wheat flakes, crushed.

Cream peanut butter with sugar, dates, salt, and vanilla. Add egg whites and crushed cereal flakes; mix thoroughly. Drop by rounded teaspoonfuls into additional crushed cereal flakes, turning until well coated. Place on greased cooky sheet and bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 15 minutes. Yield: About 2 dozen cookies.

Crispettes

¼ cup fat; 1½ cups brown sugar; 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour; ⅛ teaspoon salt; ¼ teaspoon nutmeg; 2 eggs, well beaten; 1 teaspoon vanilla extract; ¼ teaspoon salt; 1 cup moist shredded coconut; 1 cup oven-popped rice cereal; 1 cup chopped walnuts.

Thoroughly cream fat and ½ cup of the sugar. Sift flour, salt, and nutmeg; cut into creamed mixture with knives or pastry blender until mixture resembles coarse corn meal. Press in greased 9-inch square cake pan. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 15 minutes. Add remaining cup sugar to eggs; beat until fluffy. Add remaining ingredients and mix thoroughly. Spread over baked layer and continue baking 35 minutes. Cut into 1 x 3-inch bars while warm. Yield: 27 bars.

Lunches To Go

Swans Down Golden Yellow Cake Mix

Blueberries Excellent Filling For Sponge Roll

Have you ever had the disheartening feeling of complete failure when your sponge-roll cake just doesn't turn out right? Well, here's an excellent recipe for such a cake that's practically faultless. The trick is to use pancake mix instead of flour to insure the dry, spongy result you want. And, for a perfectly delightful rolled cake filling, try whipped cream and big, luscious cultivated blueberries. Mmmm—that's really good!

Jiffy Blueberry Roll

(Makes about 8 servings)

3 eggs
¾ cup sugar
2 tablespoons melted margarine
1 teaspoon lemon juice
Grated rind of 1 lemon
⅔ cup pancake mix
Powdered sugar

Beat eggs until light and foamy. Gradually add sugar; continue beating. Stir in melted margarine, lemon juice, rind and pancake mix. Grease well a 10 x 15-inch shallow pan. Cover with waxed paper to fit bottom of pan. Sprinkle with flour. Pour batter into pan. Bake 10 minutes in hot oven 400° F. Immediately turn out on towel dusted with confectioners' sugar. Remove paper. Roll cake lengthwise in towel. Cool 10 minutes,

1 cup heavy cream, whipped
⅓ cup sugar
1 cup cultivated blueberries, washed and well-drained

Lightly combine ingredients. Unroll cake; spread filling within 1 inch of edges. Roll cake lengthwise; chill before serving.

Blueberry Tea Loaf

(Makes 1 9x5" loaf)

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup sugar
1 cup chopped pecans
2 eggs, well-beaten
1 cup milk
1 cup cultivated blueberries, washed and well-drained

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Add pecans. Combine eggs and milk. Pour into flour mixture and mix only until dry ingredients are dampened. Add blueberries and mix lightly and quickly. Pour evenly into a greased and floured 9x5x3-inch baking pan. Bake at 400° F. for 40-45 minutes. Remove from oven and place on cooling rack. Cool for 5 minutes, then turn out of pan and cool thoroughly.

Tomato Soup Is Welcome

Hot tomato soup is a welcome item in lunch boxes on cool days. Use condensed tomato soup with an equal amount of milk for this good hot dish—it gives your luncher a double dividend in good food value. Cheese or egg salad sandwiches taste just right with the hot soup. Note: You'll find it easier to send soup if you have one of the new wide-mouth vacuum bottles; a soup spoon fits right into the bottle which holds more than a cup of soup.

Sour Cream Fruit Dressing

1 cup sour cream
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
2 tablespoons orange juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon honey
½ teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon paprika

Whip sour cream until light and fluffy. Combine remaining ingredients and blend. Fold into sour cream. Chill until serving time. Serve with fruit salad. Makes about 1½ cups.

Vegetable Chowder

3 cups diced potatoes; 2 cups diced carrots; ¼ pound diced salt pork; ½ cup diced green pepper; 2 tablespoons flour; 2 cups milk; 1 tablespoon salt; ¼ teaspoon pepper; 2 cups hot tomatoes.

Cook potatoes and carrots in water to cover, until tender. Fry salt pork until lightly browned. Add onion and green pepper, and cook slowly until tender. Blend in flour. Gradually add milk and cook, stirring constantly, until sauce is smooth and thickened. Add seasonings, hot tomatoes, and vegetables with stock. Serves 6.

Corned Beef Rarebit

Prepare tempting rarebit with corned beef hash. Take a can of hash off your kitchen shelf and remove both ends. Take out the meat roll and slice it into individual servings. Broil meat 2 inches from heat, then turn and sprinkle with prepared horseradish and top with a tomato slice. Broil for 5 minutes longer, then serve with a thick cheese sauce.

Onions that crackle have firm flesh. Sprouts on top mean that soft, spongy flesh will soon follow below.

Blueberry Tea Loaf

(Makes 1 9x5" loaf)

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup sugar
1 cup chopped pecans
2 eggs; well-beaten
1 cup milk
1 cup cultivated blueberries, washed and well-drained

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Add pecans. Combine eggs and milk. Pour into flour mixture and mix only until dry ingredients are dampened. Add blueberries and mix lightly and quickly. Pour evenly into a greased and floured 9x5x3-inch baking pan. Bake at 400° F. for 40-45 minutes. Remove from oven and place on cooling rack. Cool for 5 minutes, then turn out of pan and cool thoroughly.

Tomato Soup Is Welcome

Hot tomato soup is a welcome item in lunch boxes on cool days. Use condensed tomato soup with an equal amount of milk for this good hot dish—it gives your luncher a double dividend in good food value. Cheese or egg salad sandwiches taste just right with the hot soup. Note: You'll find it easier to send soup if you have one of the new wide-mouth vacuum bottles; a soup spoon fits right into the bottle which holds more than a cup of soup.

Sour Cream Fruit Dressing

1 cup sour cream
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
2 tablespoons orange juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon honey
½ teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon paprika

Whip sour cream until light and fluffy. Combine remaining ingredients and blend. Fold into sour cream. Chill until serving time. Serve with fruit salad. Makes about 1½ cups.

Vegetable Chowder

3 cups diced potatoes; 2 cups diced carrots; ¼ pound diced salt pork; ½ cup diced green pepper; 2 tablespoons flour; 2 cups milk; 1 tablespoon salt; ¼ teaspoon pepper; 2 cups hot tomatoes.

Cook potatoes and carrots in water to cover, until tender. Fry salt pork until lightly browned. Add onion and green pepper, and cook slowly until tender. Blend in flour. Gradually add milk and cook, stirring constantly, until sauce is smooth and thickened. Add seasonings, hot tomatoes, and vegetables with stock. Serves 6.

Corned Beef Rarebit

Prepare tempting rarebit with corned beef hash. Take a can of hash off your kitchen shelf and remove both ends. Take out the meat roll and slice it into individual servings. Broil meat 2 inches from heat, then turn and sprinkle with prepared horseradish and top with a tomato slice. Broil for 5 minutes longer, then serve with a thick cheese sauce.

Onions that crackle have firm flesh. Sprouts on top mean that soft, spongy flesh will soon follow below.

Pulliam Receives Deerhide Wallet On 84th Birthday

KEYSER — Claude Pulliam has received a deerhide wallet and billfold from the Deakins-Pulliam Family Reunion Association on the occasion of his 84th birthday.

The association had a manufacturer of purses and wallets make the wallet, and Pulliam has shown the present to many local citizens.

The association holds its annual reunion on the Sunday prior to Labor Day annually. In recent years the reunions have been held in the park at Terra Alta, but originally all reunions were held on the old homestead property at Cheat River Bridge at Erwin, on U. S. Route 50.

Keyser Kiwanis Club Sees Film Concerning Steel

Meeting Conducted At Markwood Church

KEYSER — A feature of the weekly dinner-meeting of Keyser Kiwanis Club Wednesday evening at Markwood Methodist Church, was the showing of a film, showing complete operation in the making of seamless steel pipe and tubes.

The picture started with the bloomer mill operation with the huge ingots being reduced from ton-size blocks to long rectangular lengths, and passing through to the finished product.

Some Kiwanians had never seen the operations in a pipe mill with its hundreds of separate operations continued with the hot steel, from its original soft state, until placed on railroad cars for operation. Everything was portrayed in the film except the terrific noise that accomplishes such an operation.

Dinner was served to the club by the WSCS of the Markwood Church, on Route 50, west of Burlington. This meeting was the end of a three-week period in which the Kiwanians had their dinner meetings at out-of-town churches, at Dawson, Waxler and Markwood.

Next week the club will hold its meeting at the First Methodist Church, North Davis Street. From there the group will move on to Potomac State School, where a Barber Shop Quartet Concert, will be presented, under the sponsorship of the Circle-K Club of the school, in which quartets, representing the local service clubs will participate.

Pulliam Receives Deerhide Wallet On 84th Birthday

KEYSER — Claude Pulliam has received a deerhide wallet and billfold from the Deakins-Pulliam Family Reunion Association on the occasion of his 84th birthday.

Pulliam has been president of the association for 26 years.

The deer from which the wallet was made, was killed last year by Ralph Lee, husband of the treasurer of the association who is a granddaughter of Pulliam. The hide was cured by Ralph Deakins, whose wife, Elizabeth, is secretary of the association.

The association had a manufacturer of purses and wallets make the wallet, and Pulliam has shown the present to many local citizens.

The association holds its annual reunion on the Sunday prior to Labor Day annually. In recent years the reunions have been held in the park at Terra Alta, but originally all reunions were held on the old homestead property at Cheat River Bridge at Erwin, on U. S. Route 50.

Keyser Kiwanis Club Sees Film Concerning Steel

Meeting Conducted At Markwood Church

KEYSER — A feature of the weekly dinner-meeting of Keyser Kiwanis Club Wednesday evening at Markwood Methodist Church, was the showing of a film, showing complete operation in the making of seamless steel pipe and tubes.

The picture started with the bloomer mill operation with the huge ingots being reduced from ton-size blocks to long rectangular lengths, and passing through to the finished product.

Some Kiwanians had never seen the operations in a pipe mill with its hundreds of separate operations continued with the hot steel, from its original soft state, until placed on railroad cars for operation. Everything was portrayed in the film except the terrific noise that accomplishes such an operation.

Dinner was served to the club by the WSCS of the Markwood Church, on Route 50, west of Burlington. This meeting was the end of a three-week period in which the Kiwanians had their dinner meetings at out-of-town churches, at Dawson, Waxler and Markwood.

Next week the club will hold its meeting at the First Methodist Church, North Davis Street. From there the group will move on to Potomac State School, where a Barber Shop Quartet Concert, will be presented, under the sponsorship of the Circle-K Club of the school, in which quartets, representing the local service clubs will participate.

Legislators Discuss Needs For Keyser

Five Men Visit Potomac State

KEYSER — Senator Ralph J. Bean, Moorefield, member of the State Senate, and Ralph Welton, Grant County, member of the House of Representatives had a busy day in Keyser Thursday.

The two were in conference with Mayor Chester J. Compton, during the morning in the mayor's office, at which time they discussed the plight of Keyser and other West Virginia cities due to lack of money to properly conduct the municipal work.

The three discussed the possibilities of taking action in the legislature that would aid in relieving the municipalities, by passing a resolution at the coming session of the legislature to furnish relief to the towns and cities, by distributing some of the tax money that now goes to the state, to the municipalities.

The two legislators agreed to submit such a resolution and ask the two legislative bodies to take action for relief. The action could be presented as a resolution to pass a constitutional amendment to permit municipalities to share in income received by the state.

Tax monies now go directly to the state and there is no law or provision in the constitution that allows for distributing any part of it to the cities and towns.

The two legislators and three other members in the city for an inspection of Potomac State School, were guests at the weekly Rotary meeting at noon, after which they went to the college campus as guests of President E. E. Church. A tour of the grounds and buildings was made and plans submitted for improvements were presented by Dr. Church.

The other members of the legislature were John I. Rogers, Mineral County; W. L. Thompson, Hampshire County and W. H. Perry, Jefferson County.

Mt. Zion WSCS Has Yule Party

FROSTBURG — The WSCS of Mt. Zion Church, Route 40, held its annual Christmas party Wednesday evening at the church, with husbands and children of members as special guests.

The topic of the program was "Good Tidings of Great Joy." Mrs. Samuel Crowe was the discussion leader and the responsive reading was led by Miss Leanna Layman, and the meditation by her sister, Mrs. Edwin Robeson. An entertaining feature was two pantomimes, "The Mysterious Visitors," and "Santa Was So Tired."

Taking part were Mrs. Glenn Durst, Mrs. Harold Fike, Mrs. Herbert Pope, Mrs. Samuel Crowe, Miss Leanna Layman, Mrs. Edwin Robeson, Mrs. Francis McKenzie, Mrs. Ira Stark, Mrs. Asa Wilhelm, Mrs. Charles Durst, Miss Arlene Crowe, Mrs. Elwood Klotz, Mrs. James Carey, Misses Doris Wilhelm, Susan Wilhelm, Helen Wilhelm, Gladys McKenzie and Helen Crowe.

Each member received a box of Christmas cookies packed by the society.

Garrett Blazes New Trail In Agricultural Progress

Garrett County gives promise of becoming one of the outstanding vegetable producing areas of the east, according to the Messenger, published by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Traffic Department.

During the winter of 1950-51 a Garrett County vegetable growers cooperative was formed and members planted 38 acres of cauliflower in the spring 1951. The B&O cooperated by providing a transplanter and sprayer and the technical "'know how" of its horticultural agent.

An unprecedented drought hurt the crop but in spite of the handicap seven carloads of cauliflower were shipped.

Financial returns were good enough to encourage expansion and this year 50 acres were planted. In addition a Baltimore firm rented 70 acres for its own trials—10 for cauliflower, 10 for kale, and 50 for spinach. All of the crops were reported successful and 24 carloads of cauliflower were shipped.

During the past two seasons the B&O has conducted fertilizer and variety test-plots to get all information possible that might prove helpful in successfully producing these vegetable crops in this new area. The University of Maryland, local county agent and farmers have joined in developing this new source of income for the community and the railroad atop the Allegheny Mountains.

The climate, soil and accessibility to large consumer centers make this area a "natural" for the production of cool-weather vegetable crops such as cauliflower, broccoli, kale and other crops requiring cool summer temperatures and ample rainfall.

Conferences were held with the Garrett County Agent J. H. Carter early in 1950 and through his help two local farmers were persuaded to try growing some cauliflower and broccoli. The B&O furnished enough plants for an acre of each of these two crops, and the railroad's Horticultural Agent R. L. Winklepeck and Carter assisted the cooperating farmers.

The crops grew well and the yields and cash returns were good. During the harvesting of these two new crops for this area, Winklepleck and Carter took several farmers on a tour of the plots and talked to them about the possibilities of increasing their cash income by commercially growing cauliflower and broccoli.

Mine Rescue Truck Aids Injured Lad

FROSTBURG—The Mobile Rescue Truck of the Maryland Bureau of Mines was put to use November 29 when William Coleman, 10, Kitzmiller, was injured as he fell from a wild grape vine on which he was swinging.

Two young lads from Kitzmiller, Robert Buckley, 14, and Duke James, 13, witnessed the accident and remembered enough of their first aid training to keep the injured boy quiet and warm.

Young Buckley and James had received first aid training this spring when the training was conducted by the U. S. Bureau of Mines in cooperation with the Maryland Bureau of Mines.

Harry B. Buckley, district mine inspector of the Maryland Bureau of Mines, and L. C. Hutson, instructor, Mine Safety Engineering, both of Kitzmiller, were notified of the accident.

Upon arrival at the scene, they examined the boy and found that he had a deep laceration of the left groin.

As the accident occurred 300 feet down a bank from the road, it was necessary to carry the injured up the steep bank on a stretcher to the truck; and from there, he was taken to a physician in Kitzmiller.

Legislators Discuss Needs For Keyser

Five Men Visit Potomac State

KEYSER — Senator Ralph J. Bean, Moorefield, member of the State Senate, and Ralph Welton, Grant County, member of the House of Representatives had a busy day in Keyser Thursday.

The two were in conference with Mayor Chester J. Compton, during the morning in the mayor's office, at which time they discussed the plight of Keyser and other West Virginia cities due to lack of money to properly conduct the municipal work.

The three discussed the possibilities of taking action in the legislature that would aid in relieving the municipalities, by passing a resolution at the coming session of the legislature to furnish relief to the towns and cities, by distributing some of the tax money that now goes to the state, to the municipalities.

The two legislators agreed to submit such a resolution and ask the two legislative bodies to take action for relief. The action could be presented as a resolution to pass a constitutional amendment to permit municipalities to share in income received by the state.

Tax monies now go directly to the state and there is no law or provision in the constitution that allows for distributing any part of it to the cities and towns.

The two legislators and three other members in the city for an inspection of Potomac State School, were guests at the weekly Rotary meeting at noon, after which they went to the college campus as guests of President E. E. Church. A tour of the grounds and buildings was made and plans submitted for improvements were presented by Dr. Church.

The other members of the legislature were John I. Rogers, Mineral County; W. L. Thompson, Hampshire County and W. H. Perry, Jefferson County.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Ever wonder why all player-pianos seem to sound alike? Or haven't you heard one lately?

The answer to the first question is that the mastor roll for every tune "recorded" for the 50,000 player-pianos still operating in the U. S. is played by the same man. If the answer to the second question is "no," then you've been paying too much attention to those new-fangled inventions, radio and television.

Any network VP's who figured that if radio didn't run the lovable old pedal-pushers out of the living room, then television would, reckoned without a New York company called the Imperial Industrial Corporation, and a 53-year-old gentleman named J. Lawrence Cook.

For four hours a day, Mr. Cook, who's been at it for 32 years, closets himself in a little room in the Bronx, sits down at a piano attached by little rubber tubes to the Goldbergian device that perforates the master roll, and grinds out "Wish You Were Here," "You Belong to Me," and other numbers that satisfy the innate desire of buyers to keep up with the times.

Then Cook goes home, sits down at his own piano, which is attached to a similar perforating machine, and punches out rolls for his real love—the nickelodeon.

The nickelodeon foreran the player-piano. You put, as the recent song directed, another nickel in, and the piano or cabinet played one of ten songs attached to a rotating roll. Some of them were real fancy, with built-in drums, castenets and mandolin effects.

Cook gets from $15 to $20 for a roll of ten nickelodeon numbers nowadays. He has a mailing list of some 600 fond clients, but he estimates that there are some 3,000 nickelodeons still in good working condition in the U. S.

"There are places in the West where no ranch or bar is complete, even today, without a nickelodeon," Cook says. "Other people collect them. There's a guy in New Jersey, for instance." His face takes on a thoughtful expression. "He has 40."

Imperial Industrial, where Cook works from ten to two each day punching out player-piano rolls, is the last survivor in a once widely-populous field, just as Cook is the only living American who still pounds out the songs.

It takes him up to four hours to do a song that will take less than three minutes on a piano. He does a few measures, then studies the result on the master roll. He keeps time by a "stepping system": A quarter note in fox-trot tempo will take 12 "steps" on the roll. That's how, despite his slow progress and frequent time-outs, Cook can make the finished product sound like he just sat down and ran it off.

Once the master roll has been perforated, it goes to a mechanical perforator that can zip out 16 copies at a time. A suction system plucks little holes out of the copy rolls to conform with those on the master roll. If things are really busy, or if the demand for the song is large, a second perforating machine can be hooked up to the first. It's not uncommon for Imperial Industrial to ship 1,000 copies of one song out to department and music stores and private subscribers.

Business, though, has not exactly boomed for some time—since 1930, to be exact. But there is enough to keep the little company in action.

Cook got into the industry because of a boyhood obsession for standing in front of movie theaters and listening to the inevitable player-pianos. With talents as a composer and arranger, in addition to the educated fingers that may have made him one of the most widely-heard pianists of all time, he still confesses, however, that he got his job "on nerve."

He is not overly boastful about being the only man of his trade in the entire U. S. He points out that in Great Britain, for example, there is not one, but two old fellows still playing piano with the past.

Somebody has to keep the nickelodeons going.

Are You Moose Or Man?

Don't go deer hunting unless you want to be a permanent guest in another man's trophy room.

One Maine shooter got the day's bag limit. Six red hats and three pairs of hunting boots.

Out in Montana they dug up a law that says you cannot mistake a man for a moose without his consent. They call it moosicide.

Irv Cobb told me he went moosing in Canada. A big moose stuck his head through the bushes and Cobb didn't have the heart to shoot. He said it looked too much like Ring Lardner's Aunt Sophie.

The Montana verdict makes a crime of moosetaking a man for a deer. It's manslaughter anyway you look at it including cross-eyed.

Personally, we don't see how any man wearing a red hat, Scotch plaid reefer and green pants, can be mistaken for a caribou, elk or good red herring.

The research clinics state fifty-five million smackers were spent on the 1952 campaign. Seems all the buttons were not on lapels.

The experts don't claim the polls were greased. All they claim is there was no friction.

That's not excess persuasion for an important semester in the political ingenuity of a powerful nation. Fifty-five million reminders is only a dollar a vote.

Full page newspaper ads, radio and television time, posters, parades, heckling, pullmans and flashlight powders are all listed on the partisan shopping list.

The registered details of a presidential campaign cannibalize the headquarters loot. Therefore the old cookie jar must be raided to pad the vacuum in case of a storm at sea.
